Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were 20 men, aged 40 to 50 years, who were sedentary and had no history of cardiovascular disease. They were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The control group did not exercise. The results of the study showed that the exercise group had a significant improvement in physical fitness and health compared to the control group. The exercise group had a significant increase in heart rate, blood pressure, and cholesterol levels. The control group had no significant changes in these variables. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical fitness and health of sedentary, middle-aged men.
