Ibbotson, Thomas M. Idzorek, Paul D. Kaplan, James X. Xiong, 2018

Classical and behavioral finance are often seen as being at odds but the idea of popularity has been introduced as a way of reconciling the two approaches Investors like or dislike various characteristics of securities for rational reasons as in classical finance or irrational reasons as in behavioral finance which makes the assets popular or unpopular In the capital markets popular unpopular securities trade at prices that are higher lower than they would be otherwise hence the shares may provide lower higher expected returns This book builds on this idea and expands it in two major ways First it introduces a rigorous asset pricing model the popularity asset pricing model PAPM which adds investor preferences for security characteristics other than the risk and expected return that are part of the capital asset pricing model A major conclusion of the PAPM is that the expected return of any security is a linear function of not only its systematic risk beta but also of all security characteristics that investors care about The other major contribution of the book is new empirical work that while confirming the well known premiums such as size value and liquidity in a popularity context supports the popularity hypothesis on the basis of portfolios of stocks based on such characteristics as brand value sustainable competitive advantage and reputation Popularity unifies the factors that affect price in classical finance with those that drive price in behavioral finance thus creating a unifying theory or bridge between classical and behavioral finance Valuation for Financial Reporting Michael J.
