Democracy and Pluralism Alan Finlayson,2009-10-16 This edited volume provides a coherent and comprehensive assessment of William E Connolly s significant contribution to the field of political theory Leadership Development Morten Paustian,2015-01-29 In Leadership Development The Practice of Philosophical Counseling in Everyday Life Dr Morten Paustian introduces leadership development as a self creating study motivated by the need to illustrate the practice of intuition In order to do so a process of development occurs to unfold and expand human awareness Through this process the concept that human consciousness is present anytime and anywhere appears for consideration Dr Paustian s process of development raised his own consciousness from being occupied with simple acknowledgements of hermeneutical proximities to becoming aware of a force of coherence generated by a philosophical recognition of what can be defined as a parallel motion of the prevalence of intimacy Aging in Slavic Literatures Dagmar Gramshammer-Hohl,2017-07-15 In Slavic studies aging and old age have thus far been only marginal concerns This volume brings together the scattered research that has been done up to now on aging as represented and narrated in Slavic literatures The essays investigate Bosnian Croatian Serbian Polish Russian Slovak Slovene and Ukrainian representations of age aging in various literary genres and epochs and analyze age as a powerful marker of difference and as constitutive of social relations and personal identity Creativity in Exile ,2016-08-09 Until recently discussion of creativity in exile has focussed almost exclusively on a few European male writers from Dante to Joseph Brodsky who sought refuge abroad from political oppression This volume with accompanying 100 minute DVD ranges much more widely to examine the extraordinary creative endeavours in a range of media of men and women in almost every part of the world who for a host of different reasons have experienced displacement from their homelands It brings together papers by academics many of whom have experienced exile themselves on topics as diverse as the visual arts in Colombia fiction by displaced indigenous peoples convicts and slaves as exiles writings about the partition of Bengal the culture of Palestinian Americans philosophers on exile and the significance of cooking to refugee communities which are interspersed with poems by contemporary writers in exile The use of the DVD format has permitted the inclusion of studio interviews with notable exiled writers from Nigeria Cyprus and Bulgaria extracts from two films relating to exile a live reading of his work by an Iraqi poet an audio and sculptural installation by a First Nations Canadian artist and a performance by musicians in exile from Burundi      Skepticism and Belonging in Shakespeare's Comedy Derek Gottlieb, 2015-08-11 This book recovers a sense of the high stakes of Shakespearean comedy arguing that the comedies no less than the tragedies serve to dramatize responses to the condition of being human responses that invite scholarly investigation and explanation Taking its cue from Stanley Cavell's influential readings of Othello and Lear the book argues that exposure or vulnerability to others is the source of both human happiness and human misery while the tragedies showcase attempts at the evasion of such vulnerability through the self-defeating pursuit of epistemological certainty the comedies present the drama and the difficulty of turning away from an epistemological register in order to productively respond to the fact of our humanity Where Shakespeare's tragedies might be viewed in Cavellian terms as the drama of skepticism Shakespeare's comedies then exemplify the drama of acknowledgement As a parallel and a preamble Gottlieb suggests that the field of literary studies is itself a site of such revealing responses where competing research methods strive to foreclose upon or alternatively rejoice in epistemological uncertainty such commitments bespeak an urge to avoid or circumvent the human in the practice of scholarship Reading Shakespeare's comedies in tandem with a defactoist view of teaching and learning points in the direction of a new humanism one that eschews both the relativism of old deconstruction and contemporary Presentism and the determinism of various kinds of structural accounts This book offers something new in scholarly and popular understanding of Shakespeare's work doing so with both philosophical rigor and literary attention to the difficult work of reading      The End of Memory Miroslav Volf, 2006 Can one forget atrocities Should one forgive abusers Ought we not hope for the final reconciliation of all the wronged and all wrongdoers alike even if it means spending eternity with perpetrators of evil We live in an age when it is generally accepted that past wrongs genocides terrorist attacks bald personal injustices should be constantly remembered But Miroslav Volf here proposes the radical idea that letting go of such memories after a certain point and under certain conditions may actually be the appropriate course of action While agreeing with the claim that to remember a wrongdoing is to struggle against it Volf notes that there are too many ways to remember wrongly perpetuating the evil committed rather than guarding against it In this way the just sword of memory often severs the very good it seeks to defend He argues that remembering rightly has implications not only for the individual but also for the wrongdoer and for the larger community Volf's personal stories of persecution offer a compelling backdrop for his search for theological resources to make memories a wellspring of healing rather than a source of deepening pain and animosity Controversial thoughtful and incisively reasoned The End of Memory begins a conversation hard to ignore      Haiti's Development Through Expatriate Reconnection Tatiana K. Wah, 2003 A conceptual framework for examining strategic processes of utilization of expatriates Haiti's development 250pp      Translating Pain Madelaine Hron, 2010-10-23 In the post Cold War post 9/11 era the immigrant experience has changed dramatically Despite the recent successes of immigrant and world literatures there has been little scholarship on how the hardships of immigration are conveyed in immigrant narratives Translating Pain fills this gap by examining literature from Muslim North Africa the Caribbean and Eastern Europe to reveal the representation of immigrant suffering in fiction Applying immigrant psychology to literary analysis Madelaine Hron examines the ways in which different forms of physical and psychological pain are expressed in a wide variety of texts She juxtaposes post colonial and post communist concerns about immigration and contrasts Muslim world views with those of Caribbean creolite and post Cold War ethics Demonstrating how pain is translated into literature she explores the ways in which it also shapes narrative culture history and politics A compelling and accessible study Translating Pain is a groundbreaking work of literary and postcolonial studies

Cinematic Geopolitics Michael J. Shapiro, 2008-10-27 In recent years film has been one of the major genres within which the imaginaries involved in mapping the geopolitical world have been represented and reflected upon In this book one of America's foremost theorists of culture and politics treats those aspects of the geopolitical aesthetic that must be addressed in light of both the post cold war and post 9 11 world and contemporary film theory and philosophy Beginning with an account of his experience as a juror at film festival's Michael J Shapiro's Cinematic Geopolitics analyzes the ways in which film festival space and both feature and documentary films function as counter spaces to the contemporary violent cartography occasioned by governmental policy especially the current war on terror Influenced by the cinema philosophy relationship developed by Gilles Deleuze and the politics of aesthetics thinking of Jacques Ranciere the book's chapters examines a range of films from established classics like the Deer Hunter and the Battle of Algiers to contemporary films such as Dirty Pretty Things and the Fog of War Shapiro's use of philosophical and theoretical works makes this cutting edge examination of film and politics essential reading for all students and scholars with an interest in film and politics

Musical Receptions of Greek Antiquity Katerina Levidou, Katy Romanou, George Vlastos, 2016-06-22 Musical Receptions of Greek Antiquity From the Romantic Era to Modernism is a rich contribution to a topic of increasing scholarly interest namely the impact of Greek antiquity on modern culture with a particular focus on music of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries This collection of essays offers a more comprehensive interdisciplinary examination of music's interaction with Greek antiquity since the nineteenth century than has been attempted so far analysing its connotations and repercussions The volume sheds light on a number of hitherto underexplored case studies and revisits and reassesses some well known instances Through scrutiny of a wide range of cases that extend from the Romantic era to experimentations of the second half of the twentieth century the collection illuminates how the engagement with and interpretation of elements of ancient Greek culture in and through music reflect the specific historical cultural and social contexts in which they took place In analysing the multiple ways in which Greek antiquity inspired Western art music since the nineteenth century the volume takes advantage of current interdisciplinary developments in musicology as well as research on reception across various fields including musicology Slavic studies modern Greek studies Classics and film studies By encompassing a wide variety of case studies on repertoires at the margins of the Western European art music tradition while not excluding some central European ones this volume broadens the focus of an increasingly rich field of research in significant ways European Writers in Exile Robert C. Hauhart, Jeff Birkenstein, 2018-10-26 European Writers in Exile collects a series of original essays that address the writers universal existential dilemma when viewed through the lens of exile who am I where am I from and what do I write and to whom While we often understand the term exile to refer to writers who have either been forced to leave their home country or region or chosen self exile this term need not be defined so narrowly and the contributors to this volume explore a range of interesting and evolving definitions Various countries in Europe have long been both a refuge for people and writers from many countries and a strife torn region which has forced many to flee within the continent or beyond it The phrase in exile involves writers moving across borders in multiple directions and for multiple reasons including for reasons of duress or personal quest and these themes are addressed and critiqued in these essays This volume naturally examines the cataclysmic and near universal exilic experiences relating to the world wars including essays on Thomas Mann Vladimir Nabokov Hannah Arendt and Leo Strauss Additionally essays address the unique early twentieth century experiences of Emile Zola Franz Kafka Joseph Conrad and James Joyce More contemporary essay subjects include Milan Kundera Norman Manea Eva Hoffman Caryl Phillips and W G Sebald This collection of transnational globalized European literature studies envisions understanding the intersection of our contemporary world and various writers in exile in new cultural historical spatial and epistemological frameworks How does literary production in an increasingly globalized world when seen from exile affect a view back towards a country or region left behind Or conversely how does exile push a writer to look outward to new trans nationalized space s These and other questions are important to investigate Taken in sum European Writers in Exile offers an academically rigorous important and cohesive volume

No Return, No Refuge Howard Adelman, Elazar Barkan, 2011 Refugee displacement is a global phenomenon uprooting hundreds of millions of individuals over the last century Yet until the 1980s repatriation or the right of return was not a focus of refugee policy and though it might enjoy a privileged position in today s debates repatriation remains an elusive outcome for many victims of ethnic conflict According to Howard Adelman and Elazar Barkan the roots of this disconnect lie in the modern transformation of repatriation into a universal right which undermines political solutions to refugee crises Surveying cases of ethnic displacement throughout the twentieth century Adelman and Barkan juxtapose the empirical lack of repatriation against the belief in the right of return as it has evolved since the 1940s revealing its distortion of international efforts at conflict resolution as well as its prolonging of ethnic and national conflict and aggravation of the fate of the displaced They find that repatriation only takes place when identity defined by ethnicity or religion is not at the core of the displacing conflict and when refugees do not make up a minority in their original country Rather than perpetuate a ritual belief concerned with national aspirations Adelman and Barkan call for rehabilitation policies that treat the suffering of the displaced and they share ideas for policy that respect the different displacements and tensions between refugees
