Alienation From Schooling (1986) Peter Fensham,2018-01-17 Originally published in 1986 this book presents three full case studies of secondary school communities in Australia one city school in a working class area one community school serving a wide more rural area and a school with an academic tradition in the suburbs of a large city The material is drawn together to discuss and describe the issues revealed by the studies these include discipline boredom staff student relations and the relevance of school work to the outside world The book includes interviews with both students and teachers recording the reactions of students to the way they are being taught and their views on whether it is worth working hard at school when there is no certainty of a job at the end of it The philosophy of the teachers emerges in the interviews as do their views on the prospect of changing students attitudes from those acquired at home and on the need for vocational rather than academic courses What also comes out in the interviews is their realistic attitudes to their students future job prospects and their views on alternative courses which could prepare the pupils for life rather than for a specific job The book also includes an account of how the case studies were undertaken and reported The methodological chapters set out some of the dilemmas and the possibilities in the study of such complex human situations Experiencing School Mathematics Jo Boaler,1997 This is the first book of its kind to provide direct evidence for the effectiveness of traditional and progressive teaching methods It reports on careful and extensive case studies of two schools which taught mathematics in totally different ways Three hundred students were followed over three years and the interviews that are reproduced in the book give compelling insights into what it meant to be a student in the classrooms of the two schools The different school approaches are compared and analyzed using student interviews lesson observations questionnaires given to students and staff and a range of different assessments including GCSE examinations Questions are raised about the effectiveness of different teaching methods in preparing students for the demands of the real world and the 21st century the impact of setted and mixed ability teaching upon student attitude and achievement and gender and learning styles New evidence is provided for each of these issues The book draws some radical new conclusions about the ways that traditional teaching methods lead to limited forms of knowledge that are ineffective in non school settings The book will be essential reading for math teachers parents and policy makers in education
