G Gelos,Mr.Tommaso Mancini Griffoli,Mr.Machiko Narita,Federico Grinberg,U mang Rawat,Shujaat Khan,2019-01-15 Has monetary policy in advanced economies been less effective since the global financial crisis because of deteriorating household balance sheets This paper examines the question using household data from the United States It compares the responsiveness of household consumption to monetary policy shocks in the pre and post crisis periods relating changes in monetary transmission to changes in household indebtedness and liquidity The results show that the responsiveness of household consumption has diminished since the crisis However household balance sheets are not the culprit Households with higher debt levels and lower shares of liquid assets are the most responsive to monetary policy and the share of these households in the population grew Other factors such as economic uncertainty appear to have played a bigger role in the decline of households responsiveness to monetary policy

House Prices and the Macroeconomy Charles Goodhart,Boris Hofmann,2007 House price bubbles and their aftermath have become a focus of macro economic policy concern in most developed countries This book elucidates the two way relationship between house price fluctuations and economic fundamentals Housing has many features which make it distinct from other assets like equity Real estate is not only an asset but also a durable consumption good for households providing shelter and other housing services As a result a house is often the largest and most important asset of households and therefore accounts for a major share of household wealth Similarly a large share of bank assets is tied to housing values House price fluctuations may therefore have a major effect on economic activity and the soundness of the financial system Following an introductory chapter the book is structured into three parts The first demonstrates the importance of house prices as determinants or indicators of inflation and economic activity The second focuses on the inter relationships between bank credit extension and housing prices and how bubbles can lead to financial crises The third discusses resultant public policy issues such as whether and how to include housing prices in a general inflation index and how to restrain the housing bank credit cycle UK Economy Gabriele Giudice,Robert Kuenzel,Tom Springbett,2012 The UK economy is one of the most
