Writing Tip 5

There are five ways to begin an essay. One way is to use a word or words to set the stage for your writing.

Dear Parents,

Write, write, write! Know, know, know! This is the most of what we do in class. Children who write, change their minds, grow, and learn more. It is the most of what we do in class.

There are five ways to begin an essay. One of them is to use a word or words to set the stage. Know, know, know! This is the most of what we do in class. Children who write, change their minds, grow, and learn more. It is the most of what we do in class.

Your Child's Teacher

We did this in class!

What is your favorite game? Write the introduction to an essay about your favorite.

Parents, please help!

Read with your child each week and discuss the writing on the other side of this assignment. Use each assignment to help your child write a paragraph that would be the best of the best. Use each assignment to help your child write a paragraph that would be the best of the best. Use each assignment to help your child write a paragraph that would be the best of the best.

Directions:

Authors often choose to begin their writing with a word and a sentence to set the stage for their writing.

Fun Fact! What word did you feel when you read, "I Just Shaved"? Did you think you were in the land of the living? Or did you think the writer was trying to be funny? Try to set the stage with your choice of word and sentence.

1 What animal would you choose for a pet? Why would you choose that animal?

2 Write a story about a time you rode something.
