Conceding Composition Ryan Skinnell, 2016-09-01 First year composition became the most common course in American higher education not because it could fix underprepared student writers but because it has historically served significant institutional interests That is it can be conceded in multiple ways to help institutions solve political promotional and financial problems Conceding Composition is a wide ranging historical examination of composition's evolving institutional value in American higher education over the course of nearly a century Based on extensive archival research conducted at six American universities and using the specific cases of institutional mission regional accreditation and federal funding this study demonstrates that administrators and faculty have introduced reformed maintained threatened or eliminated composition as part of negotiations related to nondisciplinary institutional exigencies Viewing composition from this perspective author Ryan Skinnell raises new questions about why composition exists in the university how it exists and how teachers and scholars might productively reconceive first year composition in light of its institutional functions The book considers the rhetorical political organizational institutional and promotional options conceding composition opened up for institutions of higher education and considers what the first year course and the discipline might look like with composition's transience reimagined not as a barrier but as a consummate institutional value

Argument as Dialogue Across Difference

Jennifer Clifton, 2016-11-25 In the spirit of models of argument starting with inquiry this book starts with a question What might it mean to teach argument in ways that open up spaces for change changes of mind changes of practice and policy changes in ways of talking and relating The author explores teaching argument in ways that take into account the complexities and pluralities young people face as they attempt to enact local and global citizenship with others who may reasonably disagree The focus is foremost on social action the hard hopeful work of finding productive ways forward in contexts where people need to work together across difference to get something worthwhile done Writing Arguments

John D. Ramage, John C. Bean, June Johnson, 2016-07-13 For courses in Argument and Research This version of Writing Arguments A Rhetoric with Readings Brief has been updated to reflect the 8th edition of the MLA Handbook April 2016 Teach students to read arguments critically and to produce effective arguments Writing Arguments A Rhetoric with Readings Brief Edition Tenth Edition integrates four different approaches to argument the enthymeme as a logical structure the classical concepts of logos pathos and ethos the Toulmin system and stasis theory Focusing on argument as dialogue in search of solutions instead of a pro con debate with winners and losers it is consistently praised for teaching the critical thinking skills needed for writing arguments Major assignment chapters each focus on one or two classical stases e g definition resemblance causal evaluation and policy Each concept is immediately reinforced with discussion prompts and each chapter ends with multiple comprehensive writing assignments This brief version contains exemplary readings within the chapters but excludes the anthology included in the comprehensive version Also available in a Comprehensive version 032190673X and a Concise version 0321964284 which is a redaction of the Brief edition The 8th Edition introduces sweeping changes to the philosophy and details of MLA works cited entries Responding to the increasing mobility of texts MLA now encourages writers to focus on the process of crafting the citation beginning with the same questions for any source These changes then align with current best practices in the teaching of writing which privilege inquiry and critical thinking over rote recall and rule following Legal Certainty in Multilingual EU Law Elina Paunio, 2016-04-22 How can multilingualism and legal certainty be reconciled in EU law Despite the importance of multilingualism for the European project it has attracted only limited attention from legal scholars This book provides a valuable contribution to this otherwise neglected area Whilst firmly situated within the field of EU law the book also employs theories developed in linguistics and translation studies More particularly it explores the uncertainty surrounding the meaning of multilingual EU law and the impact of multilingualism on judicial reasoning at the European Court of Justice To reconceptualize legal certainty in EU law the book highlights the importance of transparent judicial reasoning and dialogue between courts and suggests a discursive model for adjudication at the European Court of Justice Based on both theory and case law analysis this interdisciplinary study is an important contribution to the field of European legal reasoning and to the study of multilingualism within EU legal scholarship Writing Arguments John D.
