University of Newcastle, Newcastle, UK, 6-8 September 2016

Abstract

This paper considers that Smith was as a pioneering contributor to debate on management ethics. The paper then traces management ethics in three regards: (1) managerial behaviour unintentionally yielding mutual gains outcomes for societies; (2) law-following behaviour of managers reflecting behavioural practice, ethical behaviour of manager; (3) managers creating ethical capital inside markets exchanges, this reflecting intentional active, ethical behaviour of managers. Smith relegated the latter from his program. In this respect I update Smith's historic contribution to debate on management ethics, with a view to contemporary developments on many markets where we can witness management ethics inside market processes. Throughout the paper, I connect to economic theory, i.e. Smith's Theory of Markets but not behavioural ethical theory, which may see itself put in opposition to Smith from the outset. I show economic reconstruction and economic updates of Smith's management ethics as essential to set out viable pathways for contemporary management ethics programs.
