Introduction: Chemical equations show how compounds and elements react with one another. An element is a substance consisting of one kind of atom, such as aluminum (Al) or oxygen gas (O_2). A compound is a substance made of more than one kind of atom, such as water (H_2O) or table salt (NaCl).

Question: How are chemical reactions classified?

1. Match: Most chemical reactions can be classified as one of four types. Using the chemical equations in the Gizmo as a guide, match the following definitions to the type of reaction.

B	One reactant is broken down into two or more products.
E	A fuel combines with oxygen to produce carbon dioxide (CO_2) and water (H_2O).
A	Two or more reactants combine to form one product.
D	Two compounds react to form two different compounds.
C	A compound reacts with an element to form a new compound and a different element.

A. Synthesis
B. Decomposition
C. Single replacement
D. Double replacement
E. Combustion

2. Practice: Balance each of the chemical equations below. (Some equations may already be in balance.) In the space to the right, classify the reaction as a synthesis, decomposition, single replacement, double replacement, or combustion.
