Dialogic Education And Technology Expanding The Space Of Learning Computer Supported Collaborative Learning Series By Wegerif Rupert 2007 11 07 Hardcover:

Dialogic: Education for the Internet Age Rupert Wegerif, 2013-01-04 Dialogic Education for the Internet Age argues that despite rapid advances in communications technology most teaching still relies on traditional approaches to education built upon the logic of print and dependent on the notion that there is a single true representation of reality In practice the use of the Internet disrupts this traditional logic of education by offering an experience of knowledge as participatory and multiple This new logic of education is dialogic and characterises education as learning to learn think and thrive in the context of working with multiple perspectives and ultimate uncertainty The book builds upon the simple contrast between observing dialogue from an outside point of view and participating in a dialogue from the inside before pinpointing an essential feature of dialogic the gap or difference between voices in dialogue which is understood as an irreducible source of meaning Each chapter of the book applies this dialogic thinking to a specific challenge facing education re thinking the challenge and revealing a new theory of education Areas covered in the book include dialogical learning and cognition dialogical learning and emotional intelligence educational technology dialogic spaces and consciousness global dialogue and global citizenship dialogic theories of science and maths education The challenge identified in Wegerif's text is the growing need to develop a new understanding of education that holds the potential to transform educational policy and pedagogy in order to meet the realities of the digital age Dialogic Education for the Internet Age draws upon the latest research in dialogic theory creativity and technology and is essential reading for advanced students and researchers in educational psychology technology and policy

Dialogic Education and Technology Rupert Wegerif, 2007-11-07 Discusses about using technology to draw people into the kind of dialogues which take them beyond themselves into learning thinking and creativity This book reveals key characteristics of learning dialogues and demonstrates ways in which computers and networks can deepen enrich and expand such dialogues

Dialogic Rupert Wegerif, 2013 In Dialogic Education for the Internet Age Rupert Wegerif argues that the traditional model of schooling is built on the logic of print and tends to assume that there is a single true representation of reality which schools exist to transmit to new generations

Computer Supported Collaborative Learning Claire O'Malley, 2012-12-06 Although research in collaborative learning has a fairly long history dating back at least to the early work of Piaget and Vygotsky it is only recently that workers have begun to apply some of its findings to the design of computer based learning systems The early generation of the le systems focused on their potential for supporting individual learning learning could be self paced teaching could be adapted to individual learners needs This was certainly the promise of the later generation of intelligent tutoring systems However this promise has yet to be realised Not only are there still some very difficult research problems to solve in providing adaptive learning systems but there are also some very real practical constraints on the widespread take up of individualised computer based instruction

Researchers soon began to realise that the organisational cultural and social contexts of the classroom have to be taken into account in designing systems to promote effective learning. Much of the work that goes on in classrooms is collaborative whether by design or not. Teachers also need to be able to adapt the technology to their varying needs. Developments in technology such as networking have also contributed to changes in the way in which computers may be envisaged to support learning. In September 1989 a group of researchers met in Maratea Italy for a NATO sponsored workshop on Computer supported collaborative learning. A total of 20 researchers from Europe Belgium

Computer-Supported Collaborative Learning at the Workplace Sean P. Goggins, Isa Jahnke, Volker Wulf, 2013-05-13 This book is an edited volume of case studies exploring the uptake and use of computer supported collaborative learning in work settings. This book fills a significant gap in the literature. A number of existing works provide empirical research on collaborative work practices: Lave Davenport 2005 the sharing of information at work; Brown Duguid 2000 and the development of communities of practice in workplace settings; Wenger 1998. Others examine the munificent variation of information and communication technology use in the work place including studies of informal social networks, formal information distribution and other socio technical combinations found in work settings: Gibson Cohen 2003. Another significant thread of prior work is focused on computer supported collaborative learning, much of it investigating the application of computer support for learning in the context of traditional educational institutions like public schools, private schools, colleges and tutoring organizations. Exciting new theories of how knowledge is constructed by groups: Stahl 2006 how teachers contribute to collaborative learning reference to another book in the series and the application of socio technical scripts for learning is explicated in book length works on CSCL. Book length empirical work on CSCW is widespread and CSCL book length works are beginning to emerge with greater frequency. We distinguish CSCL at Work from prior books written under the aegis of training and development or human resources more broadly. The book aims to fill a void between existing works in CSCW and CSCL and will open with a chapter characterizing the emerging application of collaborative learning theories and practices to workplace learning. CSCL and CSCW research each make distinct and important contributions to the construction of collaborative workplace learning.

Computer Supported Collaborative Learning Claire O'Malley, 1994-12-21 This volume in the NATO Special Programme on Advanced Educational Technology focuses on four main areas: theoretical and empirical work on peer interaction and learning; cognitive models of collaborative interaction; computer networks and computer mediated communication and design issues in supporting collaborative learning. There are three main themes. One is that research on collaborative learning should focus on the processes involved in successful peer interaction. Another is the importance of organizational aspects of setting up and maintaining collaborative use of computers for learning. The third is that different design issues are implied by synchronous or real time as opposed to asynchronous use of distributed computing. This volume in the NATO Special Programme on Advanced Educational Technology focuses on four main areas: peer interaction and learning; cognitive models of collaborative interaction computer networks and communication and design issues

CSCL has in the past 15 years and often in conjunction with Springer grown into a thriving and active community Yet lacking is a comprehensive CSCL handbook that displays the range of research being done in this area This handbook will provide an overview of the diverse aspects of the field allowing newcomers to develop a sense of the entirety of CSCL research and for existing community members to become more deeply aware of work outside their direct area The handbook will also serve as a ready reference for foundational concepts methods and approaches in the field The chapters are written in such a way that each of them can be used in a stand alone fashion while also serving as introductory readings in relevant study courses or in teacher education While some CSCL relevant topics are addressed in the International Handbook of the Learning Sciences and the International Handbook of Collaborative Learning these books do not aim to present an integrated and comprehensive view of CSCL The International Handbook of Computer Supported Collaborative Learning covers all relevant topics in CSCL particularly recent developments in the field such as the rise of computational approaches and learning analytics

Computer Supported Collaborative Learning 2005 Timothy Koschmann, 2017-10-03 The Computer Supported Collaborative Learning CSCL conference has become an internationally recognized forum for the exchange of research findings related to learning in the context of collaborative activity and the exploration of how such learning might be augmented through technology This text is the proceedings from CSCL 2005 held in Taipei Taiwan This conference marked the 10th anniversary of the first CSCL Conference held at Indiana University in 1995 Subsequent meetings have been held at the University of Toronto Stanford University University of Maastricht Netherlands University of Colorado at Boulder and the University of Bergen Norway Just as the first CSCL conference was instrumental in shaping the trajectory of the field in its first decade the conference in Taipei will play an important role in consolidating an increasingly international and interdisciplinary community and defining the direction of the field for the next 10 years This volume and the papers from which it is comprised will be an important resource for those active in this area of research and for others interested in fostering learning in settings of collaboration
