LeFandra claims to be the founding father of the Iron Horsemen Motorcycle Club which started out as himself and a bunch of buddies drinking carousing with women and spending weekends at various hideaways on the desert and in the mountains of Southern California. They had so much fun that the Club gradually grew in size to over 200 000 members and also became a major management problem. How Montana handled it is a story in itself but what he did after an all out life and death war with Hell's Angels is another story again. The Inlet Helen Piddington, 2001 The Inlet is a rich historical document of a wild and beautiful part of BC's west coast and a gripping tale of one family's struggles to navigate a modern day pioneer existence in a place called Loughborough. The author artist Helen Piddington and her husband Dane Campbell settled there in 1975 with their two year old daughter Arabella. Their reasons for moving were different. For Dane a professional photographer wanting to write the place offered safe moorage for his beloved sailboat Native Girl. For Helen an artist at the height of her career it meant the possibility of more time for printmaking and that the family would be together year round. But captivated by problems ashore they found little time for extras. Inlet life is not easy. Everything depends on you your effort wit and commitment. If you want to be warm you must drop a tree buck it split it and stack it a year in advance. If you want electricity you must make it. If you are thirsty then you must find a source of drinking water and pipe it into your house. And as for food it is wise to grow as much as you can for shops are far away and travel by small boat is often hazardous. The following year their son Adam was born. Together the family raised chickens ducks turkeys wild boar and grew much of their food. When the two small Campbells were ready for school there were no other children left in the inlet so they did correspondence courses in the kitchen. Once Dane had solved the major problems at home he worked as a fisherman a boom man and a logger. And Helen's jobs kept multiplying until time in her studio became a rare treat. The pastels in this book were done each of its own necessity before a text was considered. The tales are of old timers and their memories plus the Campbells' adventures living on the edge, the very narrow edge between forest and sea. They capture the joys, hazards and complications of the so-called simpler life beyond convenience where one's four-legged neighbours can be very large indeed and not always entirely welcome. Some are as fresh as journal entries written the day events took place while others were carefully crafted over months if not years. We predict you'll treasure them, read and reread them and share them with friends. Their boat, Native Girl, didn't last a year, by the way. She went back to her builder to be schooner-rigged. Eventually the children grew up and moved away, but Dane and Helen stayed on. Now considered the inlet's old timers, both of them love the place as much as life itself.

Trespassing John Hanson Mitchell, 2015-04-22 Trespassing a thoughtful, beautifully written addition to environmental and regional literature. Kirkus Reviews is a historical survey of the evolution of private ownership of land, concentrating on the various land uses of a 500-acre tract of land over a 350-year period. What began as wild land controlled periodically by various Native American tribes became British crown land after 1654, then private property under US law and finally common land again in the late twentieth century. Mitchell considers every aspect of the important issue of land ownership and explores how our attitudes toward land have changed over the centuries. Secrets of the Dead Sea Scrolls

Randall Price, 1996 Discover new technology that helps translators with previously unreadable Scroll fragments, supposedly secret scrolls in hiding and the furious debate about who rightfully owns the Scrolls. Includes never-before-published photographs. Construction Equipment Guide David A. Day, 1973
