In addition to explaining that no _____2_____ are alive to take charge of the situation, Ralph spells out the current state of affairs:

Jack is quick to point out that the boys need an army for hunting, and then he menacingly jabs his _____5_____ into a tree trunk, as though it were the next wild pig to cross his path.

The boys begin to make _____6_____ for their society. For starters, the _____7_____ becomes a symbol of democracy. He who holds it shall have the right to _____8_____, and he who doesn't shall listen. Ralph makes an amendment and notes that only the _____9_____ shall have the power to interrupt the possessor.

Jack becomes excited about the making of rules, and especially the enforcement of those rules. Readers infer that he's particularly excited about punishing those who don't _____10_____ the rules.

Ralph tells the group, "This is our island. It's a _____11_____ island. Until the grownups come to fetch us we'll have _____12_____."

A small boy contradicts Ralph's notion that the island is "good" when he says he saw a "snake-thing" or a "_____13_____" lurking in the night. Ralph changes the subject to ease fears, and tells the boys that they will be rescued. After all, there aren't any unknown islands left in the world. Sooner or later a _____15_____ will pass by.

Education for Knowing Paul A. Wagner, Frank K. Fair, 2020-10-30 If our goal is Education for Knowing as the title says then we need to be guided by a conception of what knowing is For example we can all agree that there are math facts that students need to learn and we can agree that there are general concepts and laws that students should be acquainted with But is there more involved perhaps something like nurturing in students a desire to probe deeper into the workings of thing Or developing a capacity to explain why things work the way they do Our conceptions of what genuine knowing is serve as guides to what we think the goal of education is and they tell us how to build a student However as it turns out there are multiple conceptions of what knowing truly involves and these conceptions tend to be different for different sets of education stakeholders such as parents and their children school administrators and educational researchers Understanding this diversity of conceptions of knowing will make it easier for representatives of the different stakeholder groups to work together to accomplish the goal of building knowing students

Renew! Shawna Coppola, 2017 When was the last time you shook up your writing instruction In Renew: Become a Better and More Authentic Writing Teacher author Shawna Coppola builds on the premise that our students are ever changing and so is our collective knowledge base Instructional strategies that have worked in the past may need to evolve accordingly Coppola guides K-8 writing teachers with a three part framework for Rethinking Revising and Renewing their approach and finding new energy along the way Using the framework Renew examines the most pervasive educational practices in writing instruction and poses questions that guide teachers to revise those practices to ensure they are effective for all students Coppola believes the work is challenging yet critical referencing R Buckminster Fuller s Knowledge Doubling Curve According to Fuller s paradigm the amount of time it takes for us to increase our collective knowledge base by 100 percent will continue to shrink the older we get If this is true or even close to being true how can we as educators ever feel satisfied with teaching our students the same concepts using the same methodologies and practices that we have in the past The book offers a road map for renewing key aspects of our practice including How we teach the writing process Over time and frequent usage some of our favorite teaching strategies can become rigid Coppola gives a candid account of how her enthusiasm for the writing process as an undergraduate led her to teach writing for years as a set of pre determined steps Now she teaches that there are many variations of the writing process and many twists and turns along the path One foundational strategy used is opening up her own process as a writer and her writer s notebook to students and encouraging them to think and talk about their process with classmates What we mean by Writing Coppola argues that drawing isn t an accompaniment to writing it is writing Its another form of composition through which students can tell stories convey ideas and engage readers The book is full of visual compositions by students as well as Shawna s wonderfully simple and evocative sketches from her writer s notebook The tools we use to teach writing The most ubiquitous tools used to teach writing from anchor charts to graphic organizers to sentence starters etc tend to be teacher centric rather than student centric Renew invites students into the process of constructing tools that are meaningful and helpful to them The book includes a range of examples of tools built collaboratively with students How we assess and evaluate student writing Coppola draws a distinction between assessment which should be an interactive conversation with students and evaluation which is about judging and categorizing what students know and can do Renew offers a range of examples and resources that illustrate effective feedback for student writers including online videos of teacher student and peer to peer conferences Renew also offers ideas for how teachers can nurture their own writing lives and thus reinvigorate their instructional practice Through rethinking revising and renewing their practice teachers can not only strengthen students skills as writers but also nurture students to become critical thinkers problem solvers and risk takers in the classroom and in our rapidly changing world ECEL2015-14th European
