Medieval Multilingual Manuscripts Michael Clarke, Máire Ní Mhaonaigh, 2022-04-04 Manuscripts provide rich documentary evidence for understanding the history of cultural life across the breadth of Europe and Asia down through the Middle Ages Many illustrate engagement between and across languages in both similar and contrasting ways from east to west The demarcation of manuscript studies into single language academic disciplines has often obscured this reality privileging one constituent part or contributing language from each manuscript rather than exploring the combination as a nuanced and complex whole This volume seeks to examine manuscripts as integrally united artefacts respecting the diversity of their constituent elements Case studies are presented of twelve manuscripts with evidence for various levels of inter language exchange and collision from horizons as diverse as the Atlantic West Carolingian Europe the Byzantine world the Silk Road cultures and east Asia The essays function individually as discrete contributions but together they highlight a range of overlapping themes illustrating language interaction in global religions pedagogical exchange and secular society building The analogies as well as the concrete points of connection between them underline the value of a cross disciplinary approach The Teacher in Ancient Rome Lisa

Maurice,2013-08-22 The Teacher in Ancient Rome The Magister and His World by Lisa Maurice investigates a particular aspect of education in ancient Rome namely the figure of the teacher After identifying and defining the different kinds of teachers in the Roman education systems Maurice illuminates their ways of life both as both professionals and members of society This text surveys the physical environment in which teachers worked as well as the methods equipment and techniques used in the classroom Slavery patronage and the social and financial status of the various types of teachers are considered in depth Maurice examines ideological issues surrounding teachers discussing the idealized figure of the teacher and the frequent differences between this ideal and actual educators Also explored are the challenges posed by the interaction of Greek and Roman culture and later between paganism and Christianity and how these social clashes affected those responsible for educating the youth of society The Teacher in Ancient Rome is a comprehensive treatment of a figure instantly recognizable yet strikingly different from that of the modern teacher Virginia Woolf's Unwritten Histories

Anne Besnault,2021-11-04 Virginia Woolf s Unwritten Histories explores the interrelatedness of Woolf s modernism feminism and her understanding of history as a site of knowledge and a writing practice that enabled her to negotiate her heritage to find her place among the moderns as a female artist and intellectual and to elaborate her poetics of the new not as radical rupture but as the result of a process of unwriting and rewriting traditional historiographical orthodoxies Its central argument is that unless we comprehend the genealogy of Woolf s historical thought and the complexity of its lineage we cannot fully grasp the innovative thrust of her attempt to think back through our mothers Bringing together canonical texts such as Orlando 1928 A Room of One s Own 1929 Three Guineas 1938 or Between the Acts 1941 and under researched ones among which stand Woolf s essays on historians and reviews of history books and her pieces on literary history and nineteenth century women s literature this book argues that Woolf s textual conversations with nineteenth century writers historians and critics many of which remain unexplored are interwoven with her historiographical poesis and constitute the groundwork for her alternative histories and literary histories unwritten open textured unacademic and polemical counter narratives that keep track of the past and engage politically with the future Build Your Own Programming Language

To speak of first impressions of Virginia Woolf's work is not as fatuous as it may seem. After all, Woolf's fiction was initially founded on impressions, and I hope to show that one of the distinctive characteristics of her oeuvre compared to other modernists like T. S. Eliot, W. B. Yeats, or James Joyce is the intensely visual nature of her art. Furthermore, she is often associated with a movement of modern painting in the early twentieth century known as Post Impressionism, including painters like Cézanne, Picasso, and Georges Braque. Finally, laughter in all its registers, whether merry, cruel, or parodic, runs like a golden thread throughout the texture of her essays, short stories, and novels, as satire does more generally throughout modernism. I have chosen Virginia Woolf's third novel, Jacob's Room (1922), as the focus of my study of Woolf's modernism. It is not her best-known novel, as most critical acclaim is reserved for Mrs Dalloway (1925) or To the Lighthouse (1927). She started writing fiction in 1915, just as the First World War started, and for four reasons, I believe that Jacob's Room is the perfect starting point from which to survey Woolf's particular contribution to the Modernist Movement. Firstly, the social catastrophe associated with the First World War is widely considered to be the decisive historic event in the collective consciousness of early twentieth-century Europe, its effects reverberating throughout the literary and visual arts in the 1920s. Secondly, Jacob's Room was published in a year which falls nicely within the boundaries of the period of High Modernism, which culminated in the decades between 1910 and 1930. Indeed, the year of 1922 marks the publication of two other seminal modernist works: T. S. Eliot's Waste Land and James Joyce's Ulysses. Thirdly, Jacob's Room is commonly regarded as Virginia Woolf's first experimental novel, in which she, in her own phrase,
