Kaufer,Brian S. Butler,2013-11-26 The design arts from the design of buildings and machines to software and interfaces are associated with types of knowledge and performance thought to be structured modular and systematic Such arts have become increasingly prestigious in our technocratic society Since Aristotle the art of rhetoric was conceived as a loosely structured practical art thought to be limited in the extent to which it could mimic more precise subject matters The art of rhetoric has been controversial since classical times but its status has sunk even lower since the industrial revolution a point when civic cultures began to cede authority and control to the cultures of specialized experts Many sympathizers of rhetoric have resisted its decline by calling for a civic art of public discourse to stand in opposition to a technocratic specialized discourse that has come increasingly to disenfranchise the ordinary citizen This is the first book to question the rhetoric technical knowledge split from a more fundamental perspective To get some perspective on what is at stake in rhetoric s traditional classification as a practical art the authors explore the distinction between practical and design arts enumerate the various criteria cited in the literature for qualifying a cluster of knowledge and performative skills to count as an art of design show how the knowledge and performative skills associated with the art of rhetoric meet the major requirements of design knowledge propose a general architecture of rhetorical design one descriptive both of civic address and specialized academic argument turn to the Lincoln Douglas debates to embody and provide some empirical support and illustration for their architecture demonstrate how Lincoln and Douglas can be thought of as expert designers whose rhetoric is highly structured and modular and explain how the rhetoric of both rhetorical agents can be represented in the layers and modules that one needs to display plans for buildings software or other design artifacts These layers and modules are not just post hoc annotations of the debates they also illuminate new and systematic ways for viewing the debates and by implication other specimens of rhetoric in terms of strategies of artistic production Kaufer and Butler conclude their presentation by citing some of the research and educational implications that follow from housing rhetoric within the family of design arts PC World ,1990 Writing for College Robert Alden Rubin,2018-10-04 This book guides first year students through the dos and don ts of composition from such basic questions as Can I use I in a college essay to more advanced points about structure and style Emphasizing the importance of writing in all majors the author encourages students to find their own voice and to express themselves without jargon or academese Tips are provided on concision use of supporting claims marshaling arguments researching topics documenting sources and revision

Survey of the State of the Art in Human Language Technology Giovanni Battista Varile,Antonio Zampolli,1997 Originally published in 1997 this book is concerned with human language technology This technology provides computers with the capability to handle spoken and written language One major goal is to improve communication between humans and machines If people can use their own language to access information working with software applications and controlling machinery the greatest obstacle for the acceptance of new information technology is overcome Another important goal is to facilitate communication among people Machines can help to translate texts or spoken input from one human language to the other Programs that assist people in writing by checking orthography grammar and style are constantly improving This book
