Structure for Dependability: Computer-Based Systems from an Interdisciplinary

Perspective Denis Besnard,Cristina Gacek,Cliff Jones,2006-04-28 Computer based systems are now essential to everyday life They involve both technical hardware software components and human beings as active participants Whenever we y aboard an aircraft or withdraw money from a cash point a combination of humans machines and software is supporting the delivery of the service These systems and many others benefit from the miniaturisation and cost reduction of the hardware which has made it possible for computers to be embedded everywhere An equally remarkable development is the software involved today systems are built which were literally unthinkable twenty or thirty years ago Measured in terms of their function the productivity of their creation has also advanced enormously largely cause of the software infrastructure Even the dependability of the best of today's software is praiseworthy when one considers the complexity of the functionality provided Solid engineering and the increasing adoption of methods based on firmly established theory are to be thanked here However in large and complex systems there remain major challenges to achieving dependability when complex interactions exist between technical and human components Large and complex things are understood as assemblages of simpler components the way these components fit together is the structure of the system Structure can be real and physical or a subjective mental tool for analysis

Robot Shaping Marco Dorigo,Marco Colombetti,1998 foreword by Lashon Booker To program an autonomous robot to act reliably in a dynamic environment is a complex task The dynamics of the environment are unpredictable and the robots sensors provide noisy input A learning autonomous robot one that can acquire knowledge through interaction with its environment and then adapt its behavior greatly simplifies the designer s work A learning robot need not be given all of the details of its environment and its sensors and actuators need not be finely tuned Robot Shaping is about designing and building learning autonomous robots The term shaping comes from experimental psychology where it describes the incremental training of animals The authors propose a new engineering discipline behavior engineering to provide the methodologies and tools for creating autonomous robots Their techniques are based on classifier systems a reinforcement learning architecture originated by John Holland to which they have added several new ideas such as mutespec classifier system energy and dynamic population size In the book they present Behavior Analysis and Training BAT as an example of a behavior engineering methodology
