ABSTRACT

Objective: Despite the recent use of computed tomography scan and diagnostic laparoscopy, acute appendicitis is still highly misdiagnosed. Timely diagnosis of acute appendicitis is more crucial in children and elderly patients because of vague symptoms and rapid progression to perforation in these age groups, which may result in high rates of morbidity and mortality. The aim of the present study was to find the diagnostic values of procalcitonin and interleukin 6 (IL-6) for diagnosing acute appendicitis in our center.

Material and methods: Patients who were suspected of acute appendicitis and who were referred to the emergency department of a tertiary care urban hospital in 2016 were enrolled in the study. A 5 ml blood sample was obtained from each patient before appendectomy and was examined for procalcitonin and IL-6. Then, the resected specimen of the appendix was studied by a pathologist, and a definite diagnosis was made.

Results: Eighty patients including 53 (66.3%) men who underwent appendectomy were enrolled in the study. The diagnosis of acute appendicitis was histopathologically confirmed in 60 (75%) patients including 18, 20, and 22 patients with inflammatory, suppurative, and gangrenous/perforated appendicitis, respectively. The sensitivity and specificity of procalcitonin versus IL-6 for diagnosing acute appendicitis were 65% and 80% vs. 76% and 55%, respectively. The sensitivity and specificity of concurrent procalcitonin and IL-6 for diagnosing acute appendicitis were 90% and 55%, respectively.

Conclusion: Our study suggests that parallel measurement of procalcitonin and IL-6 decreases unnecessary negative appendectomies.

Keywords: Appendicitis, interleukin 6, procalcitonin

INTRODUCTION

Appendicitis is the most common cause of surgery of the abdomen with an incidence rate of 11 in 10,000 annually and most commonly occurred in the second to fourth decade of life especially in young adults (1, 2). Timely diagnosis of acute appendicitis is crucial especially in children and elderly patients because of vague symptoms and rapid progression to perforation in these age groups, which may result in high rates of complications including wound infection, intra-abdominal abscess formation, and mortality (3, 4). Despite the recent use of computed tomography scan and diagnostic laparoscopy, acute appendicitis is still highly misdiagnosed at a rate of 1-5%, with the highest number of negative appendectomy seen in elderly women (5). Hence, additional preoperative testing may be helpful for the timely diagnosis of acute appendicitis. Although the role of the measurement of inflammatory cytokines, such as procalcitonin, interleukin 6 (IL-6), and C-reactive protein, which are involved in acute and chronic inflammatory responses in addition to the measurement of white cell count and bilirubin for diagnosing acute appendicitis, has been investigated in few studies, the results varied with no consensus about the best test (6, 7).

The aim of the present study was to find the diagnostic values of procalcitonin and IL-6 in the diagnosis of acute appendicitis and their associations with the severity of the disease in our center.

MATERIAL AND METHODS

Patient selection

In this prospective study, patients who were suspected of acute appendicitis and who were referred to the emergency department of a tertiary care urban hospital in 2016 were enrolled in the study. Patients with an Alvarado score of ≥ 5 or in whom the diagnosis of acute appendicitis was documented using computed tomography scan were included in the study. Exclusion criteria comprised patients with a history of autoimmune disease; who underwent transplantation; receiving immunosuppressive, antibiotic, and/or immunomodulator drugs; who were in sepsis; or who were markedly overweight with a body mass index ≥ 25 . All patients were visited and examined by the same surgeon.

Ensuring Innovation in Diagnostics for Bacterial Infection Morel C.,McClure L.,Edwards S.,Goodfellow V.,Sandberg D.,Thomas J.,2016-04-18 The inappropriate use of antibiotics is a primary cause of the ongoing increase in drug resistance amongst pathogenic bacteria The resulting decrease in the efficacy of antibiotics threatens our ability to combat infectious diseases Rapid point of care tests to identify pathogens and better target the appropriate treatment could greatly improve the use of antibiotics Yet there are few such tests currently available or being developed despite the rapid pace of medical innovation Clearly something is inhibiting the much needed development of new and more convenient diagnostic tools This study delineates priorities for developing diagnostics to improve antibiotic prescription and use with the goal of managing and curbing the expansion of drug resistance It calls for new approaches particularly in the provision of diagnostic devices and in doing so outlines some of the inadequacies in health science and policy initiatives that have led to the dearth of such devices The authors make the case that there is a clear and urgent need for innovation not only in the technology of diagnosis but also in public policy and medical practice to support the availability and use of better diagnostic tools This book explores the complexities of the diagnostics market from the perspective of both supply and demand unearthing interesting bottlenecks some obvious some more subtle It calls for a multifaceted and broad policy response and an overhaul of current practice so that the growth of bacterial resistance can be stemmed
