Before the Country Stephanie McKenzie, 2007-11-25 In the late 1960s and early 1970s Canada witnessed an explosion in the production of literary works by Aboriginal writers a development that some critics have called the Native Renaissance In Before the Country Stephanie McKenzie explores the extent to which this growing body of literature influenced non Native Canadian writers and has been fundamental in shaping our search for a national mythology In the context of Northrop Frye s theories of myth and in light of the attempts of social critics and early anthologists to define Canada and Canadian literature McKenzie discusses the ways in which our decidedly fractured sense of literary nationalism has set indigenous culture apart from the mainstream She examines anew the aesthetics of Native Literature and in a style that is creative as much as it is scholarly McKenzie incorporates the principles of storytelling into the unfolding of her argument This strategy not only enlivens her narrative but also underscores the need for new theoretical strategies in the criticism of Aboriginal literatures Before the Country invites us to engage in one such endeavour

Culture + the State: Nationalisms Gabrielle Eva Marie Zezulka-Mailloux, James Gifford, 2003 Betrayal

and Other Acts of Subversion Leslie Bow, 2011-10-16 Asian American women have long dealt with charges of betrayal within and beyond their communities. Images of their disloyalty pervade American culture from the daughter who is branded a traitor to family for adopting American ways to the war bride who immigrates in defiance of her countrymen to a figure such as Yoko Ono accused of breaking up the Beatles with her seduction of John Lennon. Leslie Bow here explores how representations of females transgressing the social order play out in literature by Asian American women. Questions of ethnic belonging, sexuality, identification, and political allegiance are among the issues raised by such writers as Jeanne Wakatsuki Houston, Bharati Mukherjee, Jade Snow Wong, Amy Tan, Sky Lee, Le Ly Hayslip, Wendy Law Yone, Fiona Cheong, and Nellie Wong. Beginning with the notion that feminist and Asian American identity are mutually exclusive, Bow analyzes how women serve as boundary markers between ethnic or national collectives in order to reveal the male-based nature of social cohesion. In exploring the relationship between femininity and citizenship, liberal feminism, and American racial discourse, and women's domestic abuse and human rights, the author suggests that Asian American women not only mediate sexuality's construction as a determiner of loyalty but also manipulate that construction as a tool of political persuasion in their writing. The language of betrayal, she argues, offers a potent rhetorical means of signaling how belonging is policed by individuals and by the state. Bow's bold analysis exposes the stakes behind maintaining ethnic, feminist, and national alliances, particularly for women who claim multiple loyalties.

The Oxford Handbook of Canadian Literature Cynthia Conchita Sugars, 2016 The Oxford Handbook of Canadian Literature provides a broad-ranging introduction to some of the key critical fields, genres, and periods in Canadian literary studies. The essays in this volume, written by prominent theorists in the field, reflect the plurality of critical perspectives, regional and historical specializations, and theoretical positions that constitute the field of Canadian literary criticism across a range of genres and historical periods. The volume provides a dynamic introduction to current areas of critical interest, including:

1. attention to the links between the literary and the public sphere, encompassing such topics as neoliberalism, trauma, and memory; citizenship, material culture, literary prizes, disability studies, literature and history, digital cultures, globalization studies, and environmentalism or ecocriticism;
2. interest in Indigenous literatures and settler-Indigenous relations;
3. attention to multiple diasporic and postcolonial contexts within Canada;
4. interest in the institutionalization of Canadian literature as a discipline;
5. a turn towards book history and literary history with a renewed interest in early Canadian literature;
6. a growing interest in articulating the affective character of the literary, including an interest in affect theory, mourning, melancholy, haunting, memory, and autobiography.

The book represents a diverse array of interests, from the revival of early Canadian writing to the continued interest in Indigenous, regional, and diasporic traditions to more recent discussions of globalization, market forces, and neoliberalism. It includes a distinct section dedicated to Indigenous literatures and traditions, as well as a section that reflects on the discipline of Canadian literature as a whole.

American Literature Since 1945 Settler Feminism and Race Making in Canada Jennifer Anne Henderson, 2003-01-01

Settler Feminism and Race Making in Canada engages in a discursive analysis of three texts the narratives of Anna Jameson Winter Studies and Summer Rambles in Canada Theresa Gowanlock and Theresa Delaney Two Months in the Camp of Big Bear and the Janey Canuck books of Emily Murphy in order to examine how in the context of a settler colony white women have been part of the project of its governance its racial constitution and its role in British imperialism Using Foucauldian theories of governmentality to connect these first person narratives to wider strategies of race making Jennifer Henderson develops a feminist critique of the ostensible freedom that Anglo Protestant women found within nineteenth century liberal projects of rule Henderson s interdisciplinary approach including critical studies in law literature and political history offers a new perspective on these women that detaches them from the dominant colony to nation narrative and shows their importance in a tradition of moral regulation This project not only redresses problems in Canadian literary history it also responds to the limits of postcolonial nationalist and feminist projects that search for authentic voices and resistant agency without sufficient attention to the layers of historical sedimentation through which these voices speak
