Wood, 2006-03-08 Gilded Age cities offered extraordinary opportunities to women but at a price As clerks factory hands and professionals flocked downtown to earn a living they alarmed social critics and city fathers who warned that self supporting women were just steps away from becoming prostitutes With in depth research possible only in a mid sized city Sharon E Wood focuses on Davenport Iowa to explore the lives of working women and the prostitutes who shared their neighborhoods The single self supporting women who migrated to Davenport in the years following the Civil War saw paid labor as the foundation of citizenship They took up the tools of public and political life to assert the respectability of paid employment and to confront the demon of prostitution Wood offers cradle to grave portraits of individual girls and women both prostitutes and respectable white workers seeking to reshape their city and expand women's opportunities. As Wood demonstrates, however, their efforts to rewrite the sexual politics of the streets met powerful resistance at every turn from men defending their political rights and sexual power.

Enslaved Women in America Daina Ramey Berry Ph.D., Delezo A. Alford, 2012-06-12 This singular reference provides an authoritative account of the daily lives of enslaved women in the United States from colonial times to emancipation following the Civil War. Through essays, photos, and primary source documents, the female experience is explored, and women are depicted as central rather than marginal figures in history. Slavery in the history of the United States continues to loom large in our national consciousness, and the role of women in this dark chapter of the American past is largely under-examined. This is the first encyclopedia to focus on the daily experiences and roles of female slaves in the United States from colonial times to official abolition provided by the 13th amendment to the Constitution in 1865. Enslaved Women in America: An Encyclopedia contains 100 entries written by a range of experts and covering all aspects of daily life. Topics include culture, family, health, labor, resistance, and violence. Arranged alphabetically by entry, this unique look at history features life histories of lesser-known African American women, including Harriet Robinson Scott, the wife of Dred Scott, as well as more notable figures.

Enslaved Women in America Emily West, 2014-12-05 More than a century after Emancipation, no comprehensive overview of the history of the female American slave exists. In this book, historian Emily West offers the first comprehensive overview of the lives of enslaved women in America by placing their stories within the broader context of slavery in this country from the colonial era through to the end of the Civil War. She compares the lives of enslaved women with the lives of enslaved men from the same period and with the white men and women who unjustly held them in bondage. West's thorough research and eye for detail construct a narrative of the enslaved woman's life, giving voice to and revealing the significance of a singularly strong but largely overlooked member of early American society.

Home on the Rails Amy G. Richter, 2006-03-13 Recognizing the railroad's importance as both symbol and experience in Victorian America, Amy G. Richter follows women travelers onto trains and considers the consequences of their presence there. For a time, Richter argues, nineteenth-century Americans imagined the public realm as a chaotic and dangerous place full of potential where various groups came together, collided, and influenced one another for better or worse. The example of the American railroad reveals how, by the beginning of the twentieth century, this image was replaced by one of a domesticated public realm, a public space in which both women and men increasingly strove to make themselves at home. Through efforts that ranged from the homey touches of railroad car decor to advertising images celebrating female travelers and legal cases sanctioning gender-segregated spaces, travelers and railroad companies transformed the railroad from a place of risk and almost unlimited social mixing into one in which white men and women alleviated the stress of unpleasant social contact. Making themselves at home aboard the trains, white men and women domesticated the railroad for themselves and paved the way for a racially segregated and class-stratified public space that freed women from the home yet still preserved the railroad as a masculine domain      The Other Black Church Joseph L. Tucker Edmonds, 2020-12-02 The Other Black Church Alternative Christian Movements and the Struggle for Black Freedom examines the movements led by Father Divine Charles Mason and Albert Cleage later known as Jaramogi Abebe Agyeman as alternative Christian movements in the middle of the twentieth century that radically re envisioned the limits and possibilities of Black citizenship These movements not only rethink the value and import of Christian texts and reimaged the role of the Black Christian prophetic tradition but they also outlined a new model of protest that challenged the language and logic of Black essentialism economic development and the role of the state By placing these movements in conversation with the long history of Black theology and Black religious studies this book suggests that alternative Christian movements are essential for thinking about African American critiques of and responses to the failures of U S based democracy These prophets of Black theological thought and their attention to the limits of the state and traditional Black religious formations are most fully appreciated when studied in light of their conversations and interactions with other key Black prophetic and theological figures of the mid twentieth century Ultimately The Other Black Church will use those conversations and archives from these movements to highlight their protest of the racial state to explore the limits of the Black church and to argue for their continued significance for thinking about the variety and vibrancy of Black protest specifically Black religious protest during the twentieth century

The World That Fear Made Jason T. Sharples, 2020-07-17 A thought provoking history of slaveholders fear of the people they enslaved and its consequences From the Stono Rebellion in 1739 to the Haitian Revolution of 1791 to Nat Turner s Rebellion in 1831 slave insurrections have been understood as emblematic rejections of enslavement the most powerful and perhaps the only way for slaves to successfully challenge the brutal system they endured In The World That Fear Made Jason T Sharples orients the mirror to those in power who were preoccupied with their exposure to insurrection Because enslavers in British North America and the Caribbean methodically terrorized slaves and anticipated just vengeance colonial officials consolidated their regime around the dread of rebellion As Sharples shows through a comprehensive data set colonial officials launched investigations into dubious rumors of planned revolts twice as often as actual slave uprisings occurred In most of these cases magistrates believed they had discovered plans for insurrection coordinated by a network of enslaved men just in time to avert the uprising Their crackdowns known as conspiracy scares could last for weeks and involve hundreds of suspects They sometimes brought the execution or banishment of dozens of slaves at a time and loss and heartbreak many times over Mining archival records Sharples shows how colonists from New York to Barbados tortured slaves to solicit confessions of baroque plots that were strikingly consistent across places and periods Informants claimed that conspirators took direction from foreign agents timed alleged rebellions for a holiday such as Easter planned to set fires that would make it easier to ambush white people in the confusion and coordinated the uprising with European or Native American invasion forces Yet as Sharples demonstrates these scripted accounts rarely resembled what enslaved rebels actually did when they took up arms Ultimately he argues conspiracy scares locked colonists and slaves into a cycle of terror that bound American society together through shared racial fear Contesting Slave Masculinity in the American South David Stefan

Black women's exercise Ava Purkiss reveals that physical activity was not merely a path to self improvement but also a means to expand notions of Black citizenship Through this narrative of national belonging Purkiss explores how exercise enabled Black women to reimagine Black bodies health beauty and recreation in the twentieth century Fit Citizens places Black women squarely within the history of American physical fitness and sheds light on how African Americans gave new meaning to the concept of exercising citizenship

Black Bodies, White Gold Anna Arabindan-Kesson, 2021-03-22 In Black Bodies White Gold Anna Arabindan Kesson uses cotton a commodity central to the slave trade and colonialism as a focus for new interpretations of the way art commerce and colonialism were intertwined in the nineteenth century Atlantic world In doing so Arabindan Kesson models an art historical approach that makes the histories of the Black diaspora central to nineteenth century cultural production She traces the emergence of a speculative vision that informs perceptions of Blackness in which artistic renderings of cotton as both commodity and material became inexorably tied to the monetary value of Black bodies From the production and representation of negro cloth the textile worn by enslaved plantation workers to depictions of Black sharecroppers in photographs and paintings Arabindan Kesson demonstrates that visuality was the mechanism through which Blackness and cotton became equated as resources for extraction In addition to interrogating the work of nineteenth century artists she engages with contemporary artists such as Hank Willis Thomas Lubaina Himid and Yinka Shonibare CBE RA who contend with the commercial and imperial processes shaping constructions of Blackness and meanings of labor
