Jain, Shveta

Singh, Surendra Singh Yadav, 2013-03-26 Financial management practices are likely to have a marked effect on the financial performance of a corporate enterprise. Therefore, sound financial decisions and practices can contribute towards meeting the desired objective of having profitable operations. This subject assumes paramount significance in view of the present dynamic and turbulent business environment which has produced more intense competition and smaller profit margins across the world. In this context, the financial management practices of the corporates in India, a country with a vast potential for economic growth, can offer valuable insights. The present study explores whether there has been a major change in the financial performance measured in terms of profitability and financial policies/decisions of the sample companies over a fixed period 2000-2001 to 2010-2011 with a special focus on pre and post recession analysis. It delves deeper into current research areas such as zero working capital, real options in capital budgeting, pecking order in capital structures, and clause 49 as reflected in the financial management decisions of sample companies and provides a broader perspective by identifying trends, if any, in certain aspects of financial decision making over the past two decades. A comprehensive study covering all the major aspects of financial management practices also contains an inter-sectoral study among the sample companies and develops an index of professionalism in financial management based on the practices of the sample companies. The book is primarily targeted at teachers, students of finance management, commerce, accounting, and related professional disciplines/fields. Practitioners/professionals will find it an invaluable text that helps guide them to better decision making. SKILL

Africa: Why are they not at scale yet, and what will it take to get there? Abay, Kibrom A., Abate, Gashaw Tadesse, Chamberlin, Jordan, Kassim, Yumna, Spielman, David J., 2021-12-31 This paper presents results from a framed field experiment in which participants make decisions about extraction of a common pool resource a community forest The experiment was designed and piloted as both a research activity and an experiential learning intervention during 2017 2018 with 120 groups of resource users split by gender from 60 habitations in two Indian states Andhra Pradesh and Rajasthan We examine whether local beliefs and norms about community forest gender of participants within experiment treatments non communication communication and optional election of institutional arrangements rules and remuneration methods affect harvest behaviour and groups tendency to cooperate Furthermore we explore whether the experiment and subsequent community debriefing had learning effects Results reveal a weak Nash Equilibrium in which participants harvested substantially less than the Nash prediction even in the absence of communication a phenomenon stronger for male than female participants in both states For male groups in both states both communication and optional rule election are associated with lower group harvest per round as compared to the reference non communication game For female groups in both states however communication itself did not significantly slow down resource depletion but the introduction of optional rule election did reduce harvest amounts For both men and women in Andhra Pradesh and men in Rajasthan incentivized payments to individual participants significantly lowered group harvest relative to community flat payment suggesting a possible crowding in effect on pro social norms Despite the generally positive memory of the activity reported actual changes are limited This may be due to the lack of follow up with the communities between the experiment and the revisit The fact that many of the communities already have a good understanding of the importance of the relationships between not cutting trees and the ecosystem services from forests with rules and strong internal norms against cutting that go beyond the felling of trees in the game may have also meant that the game did not have as much to add Findings have methodological and practical implications for designing behavioral intervention programs to improve common pool resource governance

Principles of Business Organisation and Management, 6/e P N Reddy, For B Com Pass Hons M Com B B A B B S M B A C A C S I C W A students of all Indian Universities Global Strategy Andrew Inkpen, Kannan Ramaswamy, 2005-11-24 There are few industries if any untouched by global competitive forces Firms and countries long accustomed to dominance in their respective international markets must now reckon with aggressive and innovative competitors from all corners of the world As the cross border flow of people knowledge ideas products services and management practices accelerates the notion of home based advantage is becoming weaker Unlike their domestic counterparts firms competing across borders must deal with differences in political legal financial cultural governance and macroeconomic contexts These contextual differences shape competition in international strategy and make the study of international strategy more than just a simple extension of classic strategic analysis Global Strategy deals with the question of how firms can compete in a global environment Andrew

Inkpen and Kannan Ramaswamy examine the issues considered central to the study of strategic management in a global context such as the nature of global advantage strategic alliances competing in emerging markets international corporate governance global knowledge management and ethical issues in international business Much as been written about the relevance of global regional and domestic strategies to counter competition from overseas and as a means to enter foreign markets However lobal Strategy takes a broader view organizing itself around a set of strategic management issues that arise specifically because a firm is international While there is obviously some overlap between domestic strategic management and global strategic management it is Inkpen and Ramaswamy s contention that the differences between domestic and global strategy warrant specific attention By integrating academic research with practical examples and case studies they inform students and managers of global business about a diverse set of important strategic issues
