Atlantic Communities María Teresa Caneda-Cabrera,Rui Carvalho Homem,David Johnston,2022-12-26 Historically the Atlantic Ocean has served to define the relationship between the so called worlds of the Old and the New A geographical divide between continents it is also no less a historical space across which peoples have travelled sharing ideas and cultural practices a site of encounter and exchange that has shaped the lives of communities and nations across the globe This book maps this productive web of multi layered connections not just in terms of military migratory economic and commercial actions and processes but also of shifting lines of translation that have mobilised ideas fomented the exchange of experiences and opened up channels of communication The Atlantic is considered here a global translation zone that has been created through a myriad of crossings physical and conceptual and historically shaped through the reciprocal influences between the different communities situated around and beyond its shores In the final analysis the book explores the Atlantic as a zone of created relation characterised by the interaction between processes of translation mobility and in the best of cases of hospitality and most importantly as a space no longer defined by economic and military power but by the multiplicity of identities forged in its ambit This book will be of interest to scholars and advanced students of translation studies literature history human geography politics sociology and cultural studies It was originally published as a special issue of the journal Atlantic Studies
