The article is based upon a content analysis of 100 articles in 10 journals in the field of corporate social responsibility (CSR) published between 1990 and 2000. The analysis shows that the concept of "responsible" is used in a variety of ways, and that the concept is often used in a way that is inconsistent with the original meaning of the word. The analysis also shows that the concept is used in a way that is consistent with the original meaning of the word in some cases, but not in others.
