Hastreiter, 2015-05-14 1994 northern California The Internet is just emerging from its origins in the military and university research labs Groups of idealistic technologists recognizing its potential as a tool for liberation and solidarity are working feverishly to build the network In the early chat rooms of one such gathering soon to become famous as The WELL a Stanford futurist named Tom Mandel creates a new conference In a topic headed Local Bug Report he asks for advice from fellow online participants about how he might shake off a persistent hacking cough A few weeks into the conversation it emerges that Mandel s illness is something serious Within six months he is dead This astonishing and deeply moving book is an edited version of the exchanges that took place on The WELL in the months leading up to the death of Mandel It traces the way an innocuous health topic morphed into a dramatic chronicle of terminal illness and the complicated and emotional issues that surrounded it A cast of articulate and savvy participants offer their advice and love to Mandel supporting both him and each other as the trauma unfolds At the center of their back and forth is Mandel himself in a voice that is irascible intelligent never sentimental and above all determined to stay in the conversation to the end With an introduction by Paper editor Kim Hastreiter who followed the exchanges on The WELL as they happened and was so moved that she printed and filed away a copy heaven opens a window onto the way the Internet functioned in its earliest days In contrast to the trolling and take downs of today s online discourse this electronic chronicle of a death foretold reminds us of the values of kinship and community that the Internet s early pioneers tried to instill in a system that went on to take over the world

We Are Data John Cheney-Lippold, 2017-05-02 Do algorithms get to decide who we are Essential reading for anyone who cares about the internet s extraordinary impact on each of us and on our society Kirkus Reviews starred review Derived from our every search like click and purchase algorithms determine the news we get the ads we see the information accessible to us and even who our friends are These complex configurations not only form knowledge and social relationships in the digital and physical world but also determine who we are and who we can be both on and offline Algorithms create and recreate us using our data to assign and reassign our gender race sexuality and citizenship status They can recognize us as celebrities or mark us as terrorists In this era of ubiquitous surveillance contemporary data collection entails more than gathering information about us Entities like Google Facebook and the NSA also decide what that information means constructing our worlds and the identities we inhabit in the process We have little control over who we algorithmically are Our identities are made useful not for us but for someone else Through a series of entertaining and engaging examples John Cheney Lippold draws on the social constructions of identity to advance a new understanding of our algorithmic identities We Are Data will inspire those who want to wrest back some freedom in our increasingly surveilled and algorithmically constructed world
