Wild Dog Dreaming Deborah Bird Rose, 2011-04-01 We are living in the midst of the Earth's sixth great extinction event the first one caused by a single species our own In Wild Dog Dreaming Deborah Bird Rose explores what constitutes an ethical relationship with nonhuman others in this era of loss She asks Who are we as a species How do we fit into the Earth's systems Amidst so much change how do we find our way into new stories to guide us Rose explores these questions in the form of a dialogue between science and the humanities Drawing on her conversations with Aboriginal people for whom questions of extinction are up close and very personal Rose develops a mode of exposition that is dialogical philosophical and open ended An inspiration for Rose and a touchstone throughout her book is the endangered dingo of Australia The dingo is not the first animal to face extinction but its story is particularly disturbing because the threat to its future is being actively engineered by humans The brazenness with which the dingo is being wiped out sheds valuable and chilling light on the likely fate of countless other animal and plant species People save what they love observed Michael Soul the great conservation biologist We must ask whether we as humans are capable of loving and therefore capable of caring for the animals and plants that are disappearing in a cascade of extinctions Wild Dog Dreaming engages this question and the result is a bold account of
