existential quantifiers others conclude that in particular sociolinguistic registers of Chilean Spanish children are late to develop adult like competence in plural marking Taken together the contents of the volume illustrate how the linguistic diversity found in the distinct learning conditions in which language develops offers a wealth of opportunities to further our understanding of linguistic and non linguistic cognitive development in developing countries showing how children and adolescents deal with adverse and risky contexts and analyzing both negative outcomes and the development of resilience and coping strategies The studies gathered in this volume are theoretically grounded on systemic and ecological models which analyze developmental trajectories and outcomes taking into account the interaction of different ecological systems such as the individual the family the school and the wider society Departing from this theoretical framework the chapters in this volume analyze the risk factors posed to child and adolescent development by adverse and risky social contexts and present evidence based interventions aimed at both preventing negative outcomes and helping children and adolescents develop coping strategies to deal with adverse situations such as poverty and social marginalization Child and Adolescent Development in Risky Adverse Contexts A Latin American Perspective will be of interest to developmental clinical health and educational psychologists as well as social workers directly working or doing research with children and adolescents in situations of social vulnerability

Parental Questionnaires as a Reliable Instrument for the Assessment of Child Language Development Maria-José Ezeizabarrena, Melita Kovacevic, 2024-09-13 Language is crucial in child development Therefore general questions such as what are the possible challenges in language acquisition or such as how well the my child is doing are commonly present for researchers clinicians teachers and parents Parent child interaction offers a privileged setting to observe children s behavior in multiple communicative situations which often is only available to the parents caregivers For this reason within the broad range of methods used to assess children s development parental questionnaires are widely used being a non invasive and inexpensive instrument to obtain information which is otherwise difficult to obtain Data obtained with the many questionnaires covering various aspects of child development and communicative competence are equally relevant for basic research and everyday clinical practice Development and use of parental questionnaires as well as data interpretation frequently require an interdisciplinary and cross sector approach bringing together developmental psychologists and practitioners This interdisciplinarity is assumed but rarely addressed directly
