Sills, Karen Lee Abt, 2013-04-17 This book draws together contributions from forest economists in the Research Triangle of North Carolina with co authors from institutions around the world It represents our common belief that rigorous empirical analysis in an economic framework can inform forest policy We intend the book as a guide to the empirical methods that we have found most useful for addressing both traditional and modern areas of concern in forest policy including timber production and markets multiple use forestry and valuation of non market benefits The book editors and most chapter authors are affiliated with three institutions in the Research Triangle the Southern Research Station of the USDA Forest Service K Abt Butry Holmes Mercer Moulton Prestemon Wear the Department of Forestry at North Carolina State University R Abt Ahn Cabbage Sills and the Environmental and Natural Resource Economics Program of Research Triangle Institute Murray Pattanayak Two other Triangle institutions are also represented among the book authors Duke University Kramer and the Forestland Group Zinkhan In addition to our primary affiliations many of us are adjunct faculty and or graduates of Triangle universities Many of our co authors also graduated from or were previously affiliated with Triangle institutions Thus the selection of topics methods and case studies reflects the work of this particular network of economists and to some degree our location in the southeastern United States However our work and the chapters encompass other regions of the United States and the world including Latin America and Asia Local Heroes Kathryn Stoner-Weiss, 2021-04-13 In Local Heroes Kathryn Stoner Weiss analyzes a crucial aspect of one of the great dramas of modern times the reconstitution of the Russian polity and economy after more than seventy years of communist rule This is the first book to look comprehensively and systematically at Russia's democratic transition at the local level Its goal is to explain why some of the new political institutions in the Russian provinces weathered the monumental changes of the early 1990s better than others Using newly available economic political and sociological data to test various theories of democratization and institutional performance Stoner Weiss finds that traditional theories are unable to explain variations in regional government performance in Russia Local Heroes argues that the legacy of the former economic system influenced the operation of new political institutions in important and often unexpected ways Past institutional structures specifically the concentration of the regional economy promoted the formation of political and economic coalitions within a new proto democratic institutional framework These coalitions have had positive effects on governmental performance For democratic theorists this may be a surprising conclusion However it is possible as Stoner Weiss suggests that the needs of democratic development may be different in the short run than in the long run The local heroes of today may be impediments to the further development of democracy tomorrow This provocative work solidly grounded in research and theory will interest anyone concerned with issues of
