

HR business partner competency models: re-contextualising effectiveness

Raymond Caldwell, Birkbeck College, University of London, UK
Human Resource Management Journal, Vol 18, no 3, 2008, pages 275–294

The rise of 'HR business partnering' over the last decade has led to an enormous growth in HR competency models. Competencies are believed to provide a mechanism for reinventing traditional HR roles and improving the effectiveness of HR professionals as business partners. But are they effective? The survey and interview evidence presented here suggest that the effectiveness of competency models is disappointing, and they appear to be particularly weak at predicting performance in a business partner role. There are also significant contextual variations in effectiveness based on the degree of change experienced by the HR function, how consistently business partnering is implemented, overall levels of reduction in transactional HR, and the patterns of centralisation–decentralisation of the HR function. The findings highlight the intrinsic limitations of competency models, as well as the powerful influence of contextual factors, and they raise important questions about the future direction of HR business partnering.

INTRODUCTION

Over the last decade, HR professionals have increasingly been urged to develop new competencies as 'HR business partners' in their ongoing search to integrate business strategy with people management practices (Ulrich et al., 1995; Ulrich, 1997; Losey, 1999; Ulrich and Brockbank, 2005; Ramlall, 2006). In principle, competency models offer the possibility of creating an integrated and consistent framework for selecting, appraising, training and developing HR managers as business partners, as well as a mechanism for linking HR strategy and business performance (Boyatzis, 1982, 1993; Ulrich et al., 1995; Baill, 1999). Many large organisations have developed very sophisticated and role-specific competency models for business partners, and an academic research and consultancy industry has grown up around this area, especially for organisations that wish to move into HR business partnering (Cabinet Office, 2005; Hunter et al., 2006; CIPD, 2007). But how effective are these models? Are they really a useful foundation for role reinvention, performance improvement and the transformation of the HR function?

Despite the growth in 'business partnering' competency models and their widespread advocacy, there appears to have been very few empirical or survey-based investigations of the effectiveness of these models in redefining HR roles or in delivering a more strategic HR function (Huselid et al., 1997; Boselie and Paauwe, 2005; Ulrich and Brockbank, 2005). This article presents survey and interview data from the first major investigation of HR business partnering in the UK (Caldwell,
