These chapters discuss management and organizational structures, with a few chapters devoted to financial and personnel management. The final book in the series is devoted to the management of technology in the design process.

• Environmental Protection: The EPA is responsible for enforcing federal laws that protect the environment, such as the Clean Air Act and the Clean Water Act. It also develops and enforces regulations to protect public health and the environment from hazardous substances.

When analyzing the hypothesis, we find that H_0 is rejected for $\theta = 0$ at the 1% level of significance for all values of α . Thus, effective interest rates consistently are higher than the market rate, regardless of the interest rate sensitivity of the firm. For the purposes of presentation, we show the results for $\alpha = 0.01$.
