David Smith brings together well over 200 interviews and his own experience of everyday events providing a constructive critique of current initiatives and a potent new direction that has so far been under explored by existing bodies An essential text for all serious students and researchers interested in development      Sustainability Michael Redclift,2002-02-07

Michael Redclift is a very big name in this area of study and well known for his previous work and publications The book deals with most of the main components of sustainable development health economic policy land use ethics and education Covers both developed and developing countries many books on sustainable development just cover developing Written by a multi disciplinary team of contributors from an interdisciplinary department geographers economists lawyers and sociologists Topic of sustainability has enjoyed increasing popularity over the last 5 years or so and many of the already published volumes are now out of date      The World of Economics John Eatwell,Murray Milgate,Peter Newman,1991-05-13

What are the central questions of economics and how do economists tackle them This book aims to answer these questions in 100 essays written by economists and selected from The New Palgrave A Dictionary of Economics It shows how economists deal with issues ranging from trade to taxation      The Diversity of Emerging Capitalisms in Developing Countries Eric Rougier,François Combarrous,2017-04-06 This book presents the results of a collective and original empirical investigation of the institutional systems underlying the capitalisms that are coming to the fore in developing nations While varieties of industrialized countries capitalisms are extensively scrutinized those of developing countries capitalisms are far less documented By implementing a unified and original comparative approach based on the institutional complementarity theory the different contributors of the book find evidence for the originality and heterogeneity of the forms of capitalism to be observed in developing countries This text analyses capitalist systems as clusters of sectoral institutions and regulations identifying differences between these clusters in a large sample of emerging and developing countries Rougier and Combarrous bring together contributions answering the following questions What are these clusters of institutions underlying emerging capitalisms Are there common or specific patterns of institutional clustering across countries and what are the main characteristics of the varieties of capitalism they shape What are their main long term determinants Are there specific patterns of economic outcome associated with these clusters Can different forms of institutional complementarity be observed How can we analyse institutional reform from this perspective      The Palgrave Companion to Cambridge Economics Robert A. history of economic thought with the first in depth analysis of Cambridge economics      The Broken Hoe David Uru Iyam,1995-06-15 In this study of the Biase a small ethnic group living in Nigeria s Cross River State David Uru Iyam attempts to resolve a long standing controversy among development theorists must Third World peoples adopt Western attitudes practices and technologies to improve their standard of living or are indigenous beliefs technologies and strategies better suited to local conditions The Biase today face social and economic pressures that seriously strain their ability to cope with the realities of modern Nigeria Iyam an anthropologist and a Biase examines the relationship between culture and development as played out in projects in local communities Western technologies and beliefs alone cannot ensure economic growth and modernization Iyam shows and should not necessarily be imposed on poor rural groups who may not be prepared to incorporate them neither however is it possible to recover indigenous coping strategies given the complexities of the postcolonial world A successful development strategy Iyam argues needs to strengthen local managerial capacity and he offers suggestions as to how this can be done in a range of cultural and social settings      Poor Numbers Morten Jerven,2013-01-24 One of the most urgent challenges in African economic development is to devise a strategy for improving statistical capacity Reliable statistics including estimates of economic growth rates and per capita income are basic to the operation of governments in developing countries and vital to nongovernmental organizations and other entities that provide financial aid to them Rich countries and international financial institutions such as the World Bank allocate their development resources on the basis of such data The paucity of accurate statistics is not merely a technical problem it has a massive impact on the welfare of citizens in developing countries Where do these statistics originate How accurate are they Poor Numbers is the first analysis of the production and use of African economic development statistics Morten Jerven s research shows how the statistical capacities of sub Saharan African economies have fallen into disarray The numbers substantially misstate the actual state of affairs As a result scarce resources are misapplied Development policy does not deliver the benefits expected Policymakers attempts to improve the lot of the citizenry are frustrated Donors have no accurate sense of the impact of the aid they supply Jerven s findings from sub Saharan Africa have far reaching implications for aid and development policy As Jerven notes the current catchphrase in the development community is evidence based policy and scholars are applying increasingly sophisticated econometric methods but no statistical techniques can substitute for partial and unreliable data      The Sociology of Post-Colonial Societies J. E. Goldthorpe,1996-08-13 An analysis of the disparity between rich and poor countries and a discussion of the problems of the poor countries      The Culture and Development Manifesto Robert Klitgaard,2021 With fascinating examples from around the world this inspiring manifesto shows how to account for cultural diversity in reshaping economic and political development Around the world the realities of underdevelopment are harsh and galling and current strategies are not working well enough or quickly enough One reason Robert Klitgaard argues in this pathbreaking book is that the strategies don t take cultural diversity into account Gently but firmly he shows how and why anthropology and cultural studies have not been effectively applied But it need not be so The Culture and Development Manifesto shows how to mobilize knowledge from and for the disadvantaged the indigenous and the voiceless Looking beyond interactions between cultural contexts and particular projects Klitgaard seeks new ways to think about goals new kinds of alternatives new and perhaps hybrid ways to implement or resist and as a result new kinds of politics In short this remarkable book fundamentally re envisions what development policy can be

The American Role in the Global Economy Susan J. Whitson, 1988

Reclaiming the Human Sciences and Humanities Through African Perspectives Helen Lauer, Kofi Anyidoho, 2012 This compilation was inspired by an international symposium held on the Legon campus in September 2003 Hosted by the CODESRIA African Humanities Institute Programme the symposium had the theme Canonical Works and Continuing Innovation in African Arts Humanities

Peasants Against Globalization Marc Edelman, 1999 The author argues that the experience of rural activism in Costa Rica in the 1980s and 1990s calls into question much current theory about collective action peasantries development and ethnographic research The book invites the reader to rethink debates about old and new social movements to grapple with the ethical and methodological dilemmas of engaged ethnography to retrace the long history of development ignored by its postmodernist critics and to come face to face with peasants stubbornly committed to survival

BOOK JACKET

The Migrant Cocoa-farmers of Southern Ghana Polly Hill, 1997 The economic and social organisation of Ghanaian cocoa farming is very complex reflecting differences in population density land tenure accessibility soil fertility and other factors The small peasant with his two or three acre farms is one type of farmer and it has always been supposed that it was he who created the world s largest cocoa growing industry The migration of southern Ghanaian cocoa farmers which has been proceeding since the 1890s was not known to have occurred and this study shows that it was the migrant not the peasant who was the real innovator This migrant has scarcely been mentioned in the literature Author Polly Hill now gives a full account of his migration one of the great events in the recent economic history of Africa south of the Sahara The migrant farmer who rather resembles a capitalist than a peasant buys land or inherits it from those who bought before him and conventionally uses the proceeds from one cocoa land to purchase others It is now possible with the aid of farm maps to study the whole migratory process with its changing pattern of land ownership over more than half a century The results are revealing The conventional notion that it was only recently that West Africans began to engage in large scale economic enterprises is shown to be false One of the main contentions of this book is that the migrant farmer has been remarkably responsive to economic ends It is further shown that there is no incompatibility between this kind of enterprise and the continuance of traditional forms of social organisation nor is there evidence that the enterprising individual found himself hampered by the demands made on him by members of his lineage In analysing and recording the details of the migratory process Dr Hill has made an important contribution to the economic history of West Africa Besides the economists and economic historians for whom the book is primarily intended it should be studied by lawyers geographers social anthropologists and all concerned with problems of underdevelopment
