Condition-Based Maintenance and Residual Life

Prediction Chandan Deep Singh, Davinder Singh, Kanwal Jit Singh, Harleen Kaur, 2025-04-15 Condition Based Maintenance and Residual Life Prediction is essential for those looking to effectively implement condition based maintenance strategies and enhance fault detection through a comprehensive understanding of vibration data analysis and residual life prediction addressing key challenges in the field Issues related to condition based maintenance include its high initial cost new techniques that can be difficult to implement due to resistance older equipment that can be difficult to retrofit with sensors and monitoring equipment and difficult to access equipment during production that is difficult to spot measure Keeping the above issues in mind a general handbook for condition based maintenance and residual life prediction is required to carry out in fault detection Condition Based Maintenance and Residual Life Prediction aims to develop analyze and model condition based maintenance and residual life prediction through vibration data The analysis of vibration responses will aid in developing a fault detection system The sources of vibration may be due to the presence of different types of defects such as cracks in the shaft a bent shaft or misalignment of shafts This will give designers a diagnostic tool for predicting the trends of vibration conditions leading to early fault detection The devised tool will be capable of quantifying the amplitude of vibration based on the severity of defects With the features available in the devised diagnostic tool the proposed model can be used for design predictive maintenance and condition based maintenance

Technologies and Approaches to Reducing the

Fuel Consumption of Medium- and Heavy-Duty Vehicles National Research Council, Transportation Research Board, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Energy and Environmental Systems, Committee to Assess Fuel Economy Technologies for Medium- and Heavy-Duty Vehicles, 2010-07-30 Technologies and Approaches to Reducing the Fuel Consumption of Medium and Heavy Duty Vehicles evaluates various technologies and methods that could improve the fuel economy of medium and heavy duty vehicles such as tractor trailers transit buses and work trucks The book also recommends approaches that federal agencies could use to regulate these vehicles fuel consumption Currently there are no fuel consumption standards for such vehicles which account for about 26 percent of the transportation fuel used in the U S The miles per gallon measure used to regulate the fuel economy of passenger cars is not appropriate for medium and heavy duty vehicles which are designed above all to carry loads efficiently Instead any regulation of medium and heavy duty vehicles should use a metric that reflects the efficiency with which a vehicle moves goods or passengers such as gallons per ton mile a unit that reflects the amount of fuel a vehicle would use to carry a ton of goods one mile This is called load specific fuel consumption LSFC The book estimates the improvements that various technologies could achieve over the next decade in seven vehicle types For example using advanced diesel engines in tractor trailers could lower their fuel consumption by up to 20 percent by 2020 and improved aerodynamics could yield an 11 percent reduction Hybrid powertrains could lower the fuel consumption of vehicles that stop frequently such as garbage trucks and transit buses by as much 35 percent in the
