

G. Brown and G. Yule, Discourse analysis. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1983. Pp. xii + 288.

M. Stubbs, Discourse analysis. Oxford: Basil Blackwell, 1983. Pp. xiv + 272.

Despite the near identity of their titles, these are, not surprisingly perhaps, very different books. Brown & Yule appears in the still-expanding Cambridge Textbooks in Linguistics series; Stubbs continues Blackwell's series Language in Society, and its subtitle, 'The sociolinguistic analysis of natural language' indicates its perspective on discourse.

I will examine the two volumes in turn before drawing some comparisons. After an introduction, Brown and Yule proceed steadily through the field in a further six substantial chapters, on context, topic, 'staging', information structure, reference and coherence. In later chapters they look 'inward' from these themes to the analysis of data, but in the introduction the ground is staked out and distinctions are assiduously pursued. Some of the differences between speech and writing, for instance, are set out with examples; Goody (1977) is referred to but, interestingly in the present context, not Stubbs (1980). Sentences are contrasted with utterances, rules with regularities, and product with process. Text-linguistics as practised by such as Van Dijk is subjected to criticism on the grounds that it treats discourse as product, not process, an issue which is revisited in Chapter 3, where the formal means of identifying discourse topic as proposed by Van Dijk (1977) is dismissed as illusion. To pursue this point briefly, Brown and Yule argue forcefully and effectively that text-linguistics is concerned with content – expressed in propositional form – at the expense of all else, with the result that the form of messages, their context, and their interactional function, are all by and large ignored. Throughout their book, Brown and Yule are at pains to stress these aspects of discourse. In Chapter 2, for example, reference, presupposition and implicature are treated as relations between speakers and utterances – as acts performed by speakers – and not as properties of reified texts. Similarly, the text does not POSSESS coherence; rather, the addressee ASSUMES that it is coherent, and uses this assumption in interpreting it. The same perspective is taken in the discussion of topic (Chapter 3); we ought to think, they suggest, in terms of 'speaker's topic', not just 'conversational topic', for the speaker's and addressee's notion of topic may not, and need not, match.

Brown and Yule draw on an unusually wide range of data to illustrate their arguments: written examples are taken from children's books, newspapers, novels and advertisements. The spoken material presented includes spontaneous conversation, but is mostly 'semi-naturalistic', recorded at specially set-up interviews or task-oriented sessions. This variety means that the authors are not led into hasty generalizations based on a single genre, a failing often displayed by both text-grammarians and the ethnomethodological school of conversation analysis. They are wary of the dangers involved in 'translation' between channels, and the possibility of over-analysis of spoken

Analysis Gillian Brown, George Yule, 1983 Luke's Christology of Divine Identity Nina Henrichs-Tarasenkova, 2015-11-19 Henrichs Tarasenkova argues against a long tradition of scholars about how best to represent Luke's Christology When read against the backdrop of ancient ways of constructing personal identity key texts in the Lukan narrative demonstrate that Luke indirectly characterizes Jesus as the one God of Israel together with YHWH Henrichs Tarasenkova employs a narrative approach that takes into consideration recent studies of narrative and history and enables her to construct characters of YHWH and Jesus within the Lukan narrative She employs Richard Bauckham's concept of divine identity that she evaluates against her study of how one might speak of personal identity in the Greco Roman world She engages in close reading of key texts to demonstrate how Luke speaks of YHWH as God in order to demonstrate that Luke Acts upholds a traditional Jewish view that only the God of Israel is the one living God and to eliminate false expectations for how Luke should speak of Jesus as God This analysis establishes how Luke binds Jesus identity to the divine identity of YHWH and concludes that the Lukan narrative in fact does portray Jesus as God when it shows that Jesus shares YHWH's divine identity Dialoganalyse VI/2

Her action model uses Speech Act Theory to examine the way authors and readers together contribute to the communication of meaning. In her model for meaning to be successfully communicated, the reader must experience the transformation intended by the author. Lyn Nixon applies her theoretical model to two examples of New Testament quotation where previous scholars have claimed the author quotes the Old Testament in a way that does not correspond to the original meaning. Her case studies the use of Ps 115:1 LXX in 2 Cor 4:13 and of Ps 110:1 MT by various New Testament speakers and authors, providing new insights into ways that the Old Testament meaning, including its transformative intention, resonates in the quoting of New Testament texts.
