Murphy, 1998 Ecofeminist Literary Criticism is the first collection of its kind a diverse anthology that explores both how ecofeminism can enrich literary criticism and how literary criticism can contribute to ecofeminist theory and activism Ecofeminism is a practical movement for social change that discerns interconnections among all forms of oppression the exploitation of nature the oppression of women class exploitation racism colonialism Against binary divisions such as self other culture nature man woman humans animals and white non white ecofeminist theory asserts that human identity is shaped by more fluid relationships and by an acknowledgment of both connection and difference Once considered the province of philosophy and women's studies ecofeminism in recent years has been incorporated into a broader spectrum of academic discourse Ecofeminist Literary Criticism assembles some of the most insightful advocates of this perspective to illuminate ecofeminism as a valuable component of literary criticism

An Analytical Interpretation of Martin Buber's I and Thou, 1975 A Constructive Theology of Intellectual Disability Molly Claire Haslam, 2012 Responding to how little theological research has been done on intellectual as opposed to physical disability this book asks on behalf of individuals with profound intellectual disabilities what it means to be human That question has traditionally been answered with an emphasis on an intellectual capacity the ability to employ concepts or to make moral choices and has ignored the value of individuals who lack such intellectual capacities The author suggests rather that human being be understood in terms of participation in relationships of mutual responsiveness which includes but is not limited to intellectual forms of communicating She supports her argument by developing a phenomenology of how an individual with a profound intellectual disability relates drawn from her clinical experience as a physical therapist She thereby demonstrates that these individuals participate in relationships of mutual responsiveness though in nonsymbolic bodily ways To be human to image God she argues is to respond to the world around us in any number of ways bodily or symbolically Such an understanding does not exclude people with intellectual disabilities but rather includes them among those who participate in the image of God

Idolatry and Representation Leora Batnitzky, 2009-07-06 Although Franz Rosenzweig is arguably the most important Jewish philosopher of the twentieth century his thought remains little understood Here Leora Batnitzky argues that Rosenzweig's redirection of German Jewish ethical monotheism anticipates and challenges contemporary trends in religious studies ethics philosophy anthropology theology and biblical studies This text which captures the hermeneutical movement of Rosenzweig's corpus is the first to consider the full import of the cultural criticism articulated in his writings on the modern meanings of art language ethics and national identity In the process the book solves significant conundrums about Rosenzweig's relation to German idealism to other major Jewish thinkers to Jewish political life and to Christianity and brings Rosenzweig into conversation with key contemporary thinkers Drawing on Rosenzweig's view that Judaism's ban on idolatry is the crucial intellectual and spiritual resource available to respond to the social implications of human finitude Batnitzky interrogates idolatry as a modern possibility Her analysis speaks not only to the question of Judaism's relationship to modernity and vice versa but also to the generic question of the present's relationship to the past a subject of great importance to anyone contemplating the modern statuses of religious tradition reason science and historical inquiry By way of Rosenzweig Batnitzky argues that contemporary philosophers and ethicists must relearn their approaches to religious traditions and texts to address today's central ethical problems
