Borg,2007-06 The history of automobiles is not just the story of invention manufacturing and marketing it is also a story of repair Auto Mechanics opens the repair shop to historical study for the first time by tracing the emergence of a dirty difficult and important profession Kevin L Borg s study spans a century of automotive technology from the horseless carriage of the late nineteenth century to the check engine light of the late twentieth Drawing from a diverse body of source material Borg explores how the mechanic s occupation formed and evolved within the context of broad American fault lines of class race and gender and how vocational education entwined these tensions around the mechanic s unique expertise He further shows how aspects of the consumer rights and environmental movements as well as the design of automotive electronics reflected and challenged the social identity and expertise of the mechanic In the history of the American auto mechanic Borg finds the origins of a persistent anxiety that even today accompanies the prospect of taking one s car in for repair

From the American System to Mass

Production, 1800-1932 David Hounshell, 1984 David A Hounshell's widely acclaimed history explores the American genius for mass production and traces its origins in the nineteenth century American system of manufacture Previous writers on the American system have argued that the technical problems of mass production had been solved by armsmakers before the Civil War Drawing upon the extensive business and manufacturing records of leading American firms Hounshell demonstrates that the diffusion of arms production technology was neither as fast nor as smooth as had been assumed Exploring the manufacture of sewing machines and furniture bicycles and reapers he shows that both the expression mass production and the technology that lay behind it were developments of the twentieth century attributable in large part to the Ford Motor Company Hounshell examines the importance of individuals in the diffusion and development of production technology and the central place of marketing strategy in the success of selected American manufacturers Whereas Ford was the seedbed of the assembly line revolution it was General Motors that initiated a new era with its introduction of the annual model change. With the new marketing strategy the technology of the changeover became of paramount importance. Hounshell chronicles how painfully Ford learned this lesson and recounts how the successful mass production of automobiles led to the establishment of an ethos of mass production to an era in which proponents of Fordism argued that mass production would solve all of America's social problems.

Service-Ability Kevin Robson, 2012-11-12 Times have changed. Long gone are our days of being kings of the manufacturing industry; we are now immersed in the world of service where the relationship between an organization and the customer is an integral part of the product offering. The nation is suffering from a widespread lack of truly customer satisfying service. We lack the very thing that we need to make this new paradigm work efficiently: service ability. Organizations of all kinds are facing high customer churn, serious customer antagonism, loss of consumer confidence, and plummeting customer satisfaction. Research shows that totally satisfying the customer is the only thing that will secure loyalty and offer significant competitive advantage. Yet still on a daily basis we encounter service that frustrates us. Whilst the emergence of technology has no doubt brought efficiency to many areas of business activity including the third sector, it has led to the standardised and indifferent service we regularly receive. We appear to have lost sight that people do business with people. Through efficient technology our organisations may be serviceable but they are not serviceable. The arrival of Generation Y and the developments in social media provide businesses with a whole new way to engage with their customers but also provide a new way for customers to rate companies' products and services, not always in a positive manner. Like or Fail have become part of our social language. Organizations that refocus on the need to treat customers in a way that satisfies them and not the technology will have better customer retention, lower costs of replacement, and will build their brand value through better reputations. Service Ability delves deeply into these areas to show how today's managers need to re-think the way we structure, manage, lead, and organize our companies to achieve total customer-centric work cultures that develop lasting relationships with customers.
