McPherson, 2001-03 From the time I was five years old I knew France to be an enchanting country a place of dreams For Anne McPherson this impression became more and more entrenched with the passing years In Walking to the Saints she visits time honored sites along France's medieval pilgrimage routes to Santiago de Compostela reflecting on the architecture the spiritual universe of medieval people and the connections and contradictions between earlier theology and contemporary feminist thought At the same time she discovers that each site with its sainted patron and antique heroes mirrors part of her own life's journey With intelligence freshness and wit Anne McPherson invites readers to join her in walking to the saints The text is complemented by original evocative drawings by well known Canadian artist Tony Urquhart The Canadian Forum

, 1999-03 Time Briton Hadden, Henry Robinson Luce, 2000 Director's Cut David Solway, 2003 Solway argues in this feisty and polemical book that the time has arrived to take stock and engage passionately with our literature and especially our poetry if it is ever to be rescued from the swamp of second ratedness into which it has descended He contends that almost all of the poetry and much of the fiction being written in Canada these days is turgid spurious and pedestrian the result of two highly questionable developments the proliferation of Creative Writing departments in universities throughout the country and a largely subsidized literature industry abetted by a press of cousinly critics and reviewers intended to construct a patchwork national psyche create a sense of ideological cohesion and glorify the tribe In consequence of this we have sponsored a coterie of underachieving overproducers and proceeded to collude in their diffusion by virtue of our silent complicity or our chauvinism Solway believes that we are on the whole far too nice far too politically correct and in a word far too Canadian to register our disapproval bluntly and agonistically The last thing we want to do is offend anyone But all that such manoeuvres ensure is that nothing changes while conscience is appeased There comes a time when diffidence and affability those specifically Canadian virtues work against our best interests and prevent the candid and occasionally brutal assessments without which the critical stupor and aesthetic fog so congenial to us must remain destructively in place In Director's Cut Solway attempts to dispel that fog to see clearly and to speak directly to a readership that has been far too receptive of questionable work The Biography Book Daniel S.
