Autonomie im Lehrerberuf in Deutschland, Finnland und Schweden Wieland Wermke, David Paulsrud, 2019
Wieland Wermke und David Paulsrud betrachten basierend auf der Grundlage einer Umfrage unter circa 7000 deutschen 1500 finnischen und 700 schwedischen Lehrerinnen die Autonomie im Lehrerberuf Die Autoren behandeln Autonomie als mehrdimensionales und in hohem Maße kontextabhängiges Phänomen bei dem es vor allem darum geht welche Entscheidungen Lehrkräfte treffen wollen und müssen sowie wie und von wem diese Entscheidungen kontrolliert werden Konkret bedeutet dies dass Lehrerinnen für jede Entscheidung die sie treffen auch die Verantwortung übernehmen müssen Mit mehr Verantwortung steigen gleichzeitig Komplexität und Risiken im Lehrerberuf Das Hauptargument des Buches ist dass es bei der Diskussion über Autonomie im Lehrerberuf darum gehen sollte Rahmenbedingungen zu schaffen die Komplexität und Risiken reduzieren um angstfreie und selbstbestimmte Arbeit in den Bereichen zu ermöglichen in denen Lehrerinnen auch die wichtigen Entscheidungen treffen können und wollen Mit Beispielen aus den deutschen finnischen und schwedischen Bildungssystemen will dieses Buch seinen Beitrag zu der Diskussion Wie autonom können und wollen Lehrer sein leisten Damit richtet es sich sowohl an angehende Lehrerinnen als auch an Entscheidungsträgerinnen im Bildungsbereich die Schulstrukturen gestalten Wieland Wermke ist Forscher im Fachbereich Pädagogik Universität Uppsala Schweden Sein Arbeitsschwerpunkt liegt in der Erforschung des Lehrerberufs im Spannungsfeld zwischen Schulpolitik und professioneller Praxis aus einer international vergleichenden Perspektive

Swedish Military Intelligence Gunilla Eriksson, 2016-08-16 Gunilla Eriksson revises our perception of intelligence as carefully collected data and objective truth arguing that there are hidden aspects to intelligence analysis that need to be uncovered and critically examined This twofold study investigates the character of intelligence knowledge and the social context in which it is produced using the Swedish Military and Security Directorate MUST as a case study Eriksson argues that there is an implicit framework that continuously influences knowledge production what kind of data is considered relevant how this data is interpreted and the specific social and linguistic context of the organisation surrounded by unarticulated norms and specific procedures She asks whether these conventions hamper or obstruct intelligence assessments an essential analysis given that history has shown us the grave consequences basing policy on intelligence's wrong conclusions

The Autonomy Paradox: Teachers' Perceptions of Self-Governance Across Europe Wieland Wermke, Maija Salokangas, 2021-03-24 What do we mean when we speak about teacher autonomy How free are teachers to go about their work To answer these complex questions the authors asked thousands of teachers in four national contexts in Finland Ireland Germany and Sweden what they think autonomy looks like The resulting book examines teacher autonomy theoretically and empirically comparing teachers perceptions of their professional autonomy Utilizing a mixed method approach the authors combine data from a large scale questionnaire study teacher interviews lesson and meeting observations and workshops that brought together teachers from the four participating countries All this engagement with teachers revealed that simply increasing their professional autonomy might not lead to desired outcomes This is because from a teachers point of view increased decision making capacity brings further complexity and risk to their work and it may instead lead to anxiety self restriction and the eventual rejection of autonomy These surprising conclusions challenge the increasingly orthodox view that increased autonomy is a desirable end in itself This is what the authors call the autonomy paradox

Modern Solid Waste Management in Practice Anna Bernstad Saraiva Schott, Henrik Aspegren, Mimmi Bissmont, Jes la Cour Jansen, 2013-12-17 This book focuses on sustainable solid waste management in an urban context and gives an example of how a modern city can work with waste management for increased sustainability in close cooperation with the academy The book describes challenges which the city is facing and presents a case on how these can be tackled based on several research and development projects performed in the City of Malm over the last decade In these projects the city has worked as a test bed for new solutions developed with and evaluated by the university The projects and evaluations of the same have been developed with a multi dimensional approach including technical aspects resource efficiency economic parameters information strategies towards households and user friendliness Methods used for evaluation are presented in a comprehensive way together with a discussion on how results from performed evaluations have affected the solid waste management policy making in the city The book describes a bridging over a commonly noticed gap between research on the one hand and policy making and technical management on the other Several examples are given on how academy and real life and full scale developments in the city can have a fruit full collaboration where feed back from evaluation of made changes are used for continuous improvements at the same time as the actual needs from the city forces the academy to develop new methods for evaluations and develop new solutions to previously un known or un addressed problems

Geopolitical Rivalries and Strategic Competition Across Eurasia Pietrzak, Piotr, 2025-07-29 Geopolitical rivalries and strategic competition across Eurasia have intensified in recent years reshaping the continent's political economic and security dynamics As major powers pursue competing interests Eurasia has become a critical area for influence infrastructure development and military impressions From various global initiatives to regional policies complex alliances rivalries and strategic calculations emerge These developments redefine state relationships while impacting global power balances and regional stability Geopolitical Rivalries and Strategic Competition Across Eurasia explores the influence of geopolitics on government strategy and international relations It examines various political rivalries and competitions across

Approach to management in the Baltic Sea Area Sara Söderström, 2017-01-17 This thesis explores the avenues for the ecosystem approach to management in the Baltic Sea Region This region is one of the most contaminated water bodies in the world although the first Regional Seas Convention was created here and the region has a long history of cooperation and environmental protection The current environmental governance arrangements are examined with specific focus on governance structures cross sectoral integration and ecological boundaries The ecosystem approach to management as both a tool and vision of holistic management of natural resources is traced through the evolution of environmental governance as well as its manifestation in contemporary environmental policies in the region It is found that the major EU directives as well as HELCOM policies promote the ecosystem approach and that its presence has increased in recent years it is now the major guiding principle in European marine governance However the governance structures impede implementation in different ways The environmental problem areas in the region all require different governance arrangements thus obstructing a holistic approach The environmental problems per se also affect each other necessitating far reaching sectoral integration and cross border cooperation which at present is the major obstacle regarding implementation The contemporary trends combining solid regionalisation through HELCOM with increased Europeanisation and macro regionalisation by different EU initiatives offer some promise but the cross sectoral impediments must be resolved if the ecosystem approach is to become a practical approach and not just a policy principle Children in Custody Disputes Anna Kaldal, Agnes Hellner, Titti Mattsson, 2023-12-07 This open access book explores how legal proceedings in and out of court can be matched to the complex problems underlying disputes concerning child custody residence and contact between parents It focusses in particular on Nordic experiences of in and out of court mechanisms as means of resolving custody disputes The contributors are internationally renowned and experienced researchers from the legal psychological and sociological fields who provide empirical as well as legal perspectives They examine central legal ethical and knowledge based dilemmas in custody dispute proceedings The findings speak to an international audience and suggest ways how to best realize the interests of the child It transcends disciplinary institutional and jurisdictional boundaries in search of new knowledge Justifying Interventions in Africa N. Wilén, 2012-02-21 This new paperback edition of Justifying Interventions in Africa includes a new preface written by Professor Annika Björkdahl from Lund University Analysing the UN interventions in Liberia Burundi and the Congo Wilén poses the question of how one can stabilize a state through external intervention without destabilizing sovereignty She critically examines the justifications for international and regional interventions through a social constructivist framework

Challenges for the Democratisation Process in Tanzania Jonas Ewald, 2013. Tanzania has been independent for 50 years. While most neighbouring states have gone through violent conflicts Tanzania has managed to implement extensive reforms without armed political conflicts. Hence Tanzania is an interesting case for Peace and Development research. This dissertation analyses the political development in Tanzania since the introduction of the multiparty system in 1992 with a focus on the challenges for the democratisation process in connection with the 2000 and 2005 elections. The question of to what extent Tanzania had moved towards a consolidation of democracy is analysed by looking at nine different institutions of importance for democratisation grouped in four spheres: the state, the political civil and economic society. Focus is on the development of the political society and the role of the opposition in particular. The analysis is based on secondary and primary material collected between September 2000 to April 2010. The main conclusion is that even if the institutions of liberal democracy have gradually developed in practice single party rule has continued. manifested in the 2005 election when the CCM won 92% of seats. Despite impressive economic growth poverty remains deep and has not been substantially reduced. On a theoretical level this brings the old debate between liberal and substantive democracy back to the fore. Neither the economic nor the political reforms have brought about a transformation of the political and economic system resulting in the poor majority gaining substantially more political influence and improved economic conditions. Hence it is argued that the interface between the economic political and administrative reforms has not been sufficiently considered in the liberal democratic tradition. Liberal democracy is necessary for a democratic development but not sufficient for democracy to be consolidated. For that a substantive democratic development is necessary.

Law and Spatial Planning Stefan Larsson, 2014-08-20. This PhD thesis in Spatial Planning argues for the importance of understanding the approaches to knowledge and rationalities embedded in spatially relevant decision making. It emphasises the significance of seeing law as an empirical object of study for planning and environmental management. The Swedish development of wind power and 3G mobile infrastructures are used as cases to study these issues of principal interest. It is a compilation thesis consisting of a comprehensive introductory framework and five articles or chapters that have also been published elsewhere.

The study is based on three main perspectives Level of decision making legitimacy of different forms of knowledge involved in the process and the sociolegal tension between formal law and its practical consequences The thesis deals with problems stemming from the multi level tensions in the planning and implementation that exist between the national the regional and the local authorities The legal context is analysed from the sociolegal perspective in particular how the juridification of siting and permit conflicts determines what type of knowledge that can legitimately affect the decision making and thereby set conditions for public participation Finally the thesis elaborates on the largely counterproductive results of the strong emphasis on efficiency in the revision of planning and permit processes for wind power and 3G infrastructure and what can be learnt from the experiences of the attempts at increasing efficiency A combination of methods has been employed in the studies and the data comes from a range of sources such as a large set of mast building permits a sample of wind permit cases as well as appealed permit cases In addition interviews have been conducted with judges from relevant courts including regional handling officers who assess wind turbine applications Legal documents such as preparatory work and licence conditions have also been analysed The results show that there is a legal rhetorical adaptation to the expert based decision making in court when permits are appealed Further the administrative levels interact poorly in the overall implementation The national decisions irrespective of the normative viewpoint of who should control the landscape planning could be better informed of the preconditions at a local level that factually define the outcome of the implementation
