Introduction

My leadership philosophy is guided by the most appropriate values, competencies, and principles. I have been focusing on specific abilities that have the potential to support my personal and career goals (Doltu 168). I have constantly interacted with my classmates since the beginning of the resident phase of the Basic Course. By so doing, I have acquired new competencies that make me a team player. Such abilities will also make it easier for me to interact with different team members. I will also guide them to achieve their leadership goals. This discussion gives a detailed analysis of my leadership philosophy.

Aspects of My Personal Leadership Philosophy

To begin with, I always believe that I am a competent leader who can produce positive results. Within the past four years, I have acquired specific skills that can make me a competent leader. My leadership philosophy is characterized by specific values and attributes. I always embrace the power of transformational leadership (Wiltshire 4). The leadership approach makes it easier for me to collaborate with my followers in order to achieve the best results. I possess effective competencies such as decision-making, critical thinking, and problem-solving. My philosophy is characterized by the best values such as integrity, authenticity, humility, wisdom, and service (Webb, Darling, and Alvey 9). These values make it easier for me to support the needs of my followers. My belief system is founded on the understanding that all people are equal. This means that they must be treated equally. I always use this belief system to guide, support and empower my teammates.

As well, my interaction with different classmates has proved helpful. For instance, the interaction has equipped me with new skills that have become part of my leadership style. I have learned how to collaborate with different individuals. The practice has also encouraged me to be committed to the needs of my teammates and followers. I have
