Resources in Education, 1997 Identity, Social Class and Learning in the 'Bottom' Reading Group Jess Anderson, 2025-02-28 The common practice of ability grouped reading in UK schools often termed guided reading influences children's sense of identity feelings and progress as readers Drawing on a rich ethnographic study of three primary classrooms this book reopens a critical inquiry into ability grouped reading that has been quiet since the 1990s when guided reading in literacy education became established practice in the UK and the US Through the lens of children's agency in accommodating resisting and at times transforming such reading pedagogy the book shows how readers are shaped by ability grouped reading and by the more egalitarian reading pedagogies introduced in the study Children's individual and collective experiences are brought to life through extended narratives that attend as closely to gesture posture visage silences and prosody of speech as to spoken words The book ends with a provocation how literacy pedagogy might change if reflexive noticing and dismantling of hierarchies become the compass of pedagogical change This demands attention to structural inequalities around race gender and class and a turn towards deep listening to children As well as being a valuable read for scholars of the sociology of childhood and education it should appeal to anyone concerned with making education more equitable including teachers school leaders parents carers and policymakers

The Performativity of Value Steve Sherlock, 2013-12-18 The Performativity of Value On the Citability of Cultural Commodities addresses the increased commodification of language in the U S cultural economy The marketing of cultural commodities in formats such as websites videos movies books online games or television episodes as distributed across a wide range of technological devices means that language is moving across situational contexts to an unprecedented degree Just as authors quote or paraphrase sources in the construction of a text subjects cite the commodified words images and works of others as they construct their social identities Steve Sherlock discusses how consumer citational practices generate demand for those cultural commodities which align the self with particular subcultural groups By re citing the exchange value frame within which language itself has acquired an economic worth consumer citational practices have become performative of the U S cultural economy In order to describe this process the book extends the work of Judith Butler on the performativity of gender to the performativity of exchange value as well as to the performativity of subcultural values The book also develops a critique of the increasing commodification of language in the contemporary economy Sherlock follows Butler in developing a model of performativity based on Jacques Derrida's work particularly regarding the citability of language into new situational contexts Derrida's critique of the metaphysics of presence in Western philosophy and culture is extended toward a critique of the assumed presence of exchange value in the cultural marketplace The book also incorporates the work of the Bakhtin Circle into this framework especially their insight into how everyday utterances which report on the words of others become a site for the re negotiation of values between self and others The re citational process used in contemporary identity construction can thus either re cite the current cultural economy or resist it The Performativity of Value contributes to themes examined in social theory social psychology literary theory continental philosophy and cultural studies and thus will be of interest to students and scholars working in those areas

Blue Collar, Theoretically John F. Lavelle, 2011-11-28 Though Marxism is the dominant philosophical theory applied to class in academia its real life inconsistencies particularly stereotyping have troubling effects on working class studies As a result of its hegemony alternative discourses have been effectively shut out of the academic world This critical work seeks to establish a new philosophy of class drawing on disciplines as diverse as sociology cognitive science anthropology and psychology and applying a decidedly Weberian hermeneutical lens Topics covered include a detailed exploration of Marxism a review of working class literature post marxist theories of class and the future of the field Bourdieu: The Next Generation Jenny Thatcher, Nicola Ingram, Ciaran Burke, Jessie Abrahams, 2015-12-22 This book will give unique insight into how a new generation of Bourdieusian researchers apply Bourdieu to contemporary issues It will provide a discussion of the working mechanisms of thinking through and or with Bourdieu when analysing data In each chapter individual authors discuss and reflect upon their own research and the ways in which they put Bourdieu to work The aim of this book is not to just to provide examples of the development of Bourdieusian research but for each author to reflect on the ways in which they came across Bourdieu s work why it speaks to them including a reflexive consideration of their own background and the way in which it is thus useful in their thinking Many of the authors were introduced to Bourdieu s works after his death The research problems which the individual authors tackle are contextualised in a different time and space to the one Bourdieu occupied when he was developing his conceptual framework This book will demonstrate how his concepts can be applied as thinking tools to understand contemporary social reality Throughout Bourdieu s career he argued that sociologists need to create an epistemological break to abandon our common sense or as much as we can and to formulate findings from our results In essence we are putting Bourdieu to work to provide a structural constructivist approach to social reality anchored through empirical reflexivity questions by tracing the learning experiences of individual children from a poor inner urban neighbourhood half of them from Bangladeshi families as they acquire the knowledge appropriate to their home culture and then take this knowledge to their reception class The book highlights the small differences in family life in parenting practices in perspectives on childhood and in beliefs about work and play which make a big difference to children's adaptations to school In other words it shows how children succeed and fail from their early days at school It shows too how the good intentions of good teachers can sometimes allow children from certain backgrounds to become disaffected and learn to fail and it suggests ways of working with children from working class and multicultural families which may help both children and parents to gain a better understanding of school learning in the UK
