Well Path Design – Part I

This TIPS&TRICKS is the first of a three-part series intended to aid the geoscientist working in Petrel and tasked with providing proposed well paths to a well engineering department for further analysis as part of an exploration or development project.

Well planning in Petrel can be done automatically or interactively. The automatic method uses a well path optimizing program to generate a number of well paths or scenarios to choose from based on a set of criteria you define. Proposed well paths can be created interactively by clicking on an object displayed in a 3D window to place design points. Design points can be edited either graphically in a 3D window or through the well trace spreadsheet. This article highlights the interactive method using the Well path design process in Petrel 2011.1. All well planning in Petrel can only be done in the depth domain.

THIS DOCUMENT IS VALID FOR VERSIONS 2010.2 AND 2011.1. THE ONLY DIFFERENCE IS THE ADDITION OF THE MOVE WELL METHOD IN THE WELL PATH DESIGN PROCESS IN 2011.1.
