

Understanding the difference between cash and profit (questions 4 – 5):

The ABC Company recognizes credit sales of €100,000. The cost of the goods sold is €60,000. Answer the following two questions:

4. What is the effect of the transaction described above on the cash account?

- a) Cash increases by €100,000.
- b) Cash decreases by €60,000.
- c) Cash increases by €40,000.
- d) Cash does not change.

Answer: The correct answer is d). Cash does not change because the sales are on credit, and the cost of goods sold correspond to inventories that we pay at some other point. The transaction just consists of delivering inventories we had in our warehouse.

5. What is the effect of the transaction described above on the profit and loss account?

- a) The profit and loss account increases by €100,000.
- b) The profit and loss account decreases by €60,000.
- c) The profit and loss account increases by €40,000.
- d) The profit and loss account does not change.

Answer: The correct answer is c). ABC recognizes revenues of €100,000 and cost of goods sold of €60,000. So the total impact on the profit and loss account is +€40,000. Because of accrual accounting, we make this recognition of sales at the moment we deliver with the clear promise that we will collect the cash in the future.

Depreciation and amortization (questions 6 – 10):

Agrokinsey Inc. acquires a new piece of equipment in the beginning of 2016 at a cost of €20,000. The company estimates that the equipment's useful life is 10 years and its salvage value €4,000. Agrokinsey follows the straight-line depreciation method. Answer the following five questions:

6. What is the depreciable amount of the equipment (i.e. total value of the equipment to be depreciated)?

- a) €20,000
- b) €4,000
- c) €16,000
- d) €1,600

Answer: The correct answer is c). The amount to be depreciated is the original purchase cost minus the residual value (i.e. salvage value), that is, $20,000 - 4,000 = 16,000$.

7. What is the annual depreciation expense for the equipment?

- a) €20,000
- b) €4,000
- c) €16,000
- d) €1,600
