Computer technology has impacted the practice of medicine in dramatic ways Imaging techniques provide non evasive tools which alter the diagnostic process Sophisticated monitoring equipment presents new levels of detail for both patient management and research In most of these high technology applications the computer is embedded in the device its presence is transparent to the user There is also a growing number of applications in which the health care provider directly interacts with a computer In many cases these applications are limited to administrative functions e g office practice management location of hospital patients appointments and scheduling Nevertheless there also are instances of patient care functions such as results reporting decision support surveillance and reminders This series Computers and Medicine will focus upon the direct use of information systems as it relates to the medical community After twenty five years of experimentation and experience there are many tested applications which can be implemented economically using the current generation of computers Moreover the falling cost of computers suggests that there will be even more extensive use in the near future Yet there is a gap between current practice and the state of the art Journal of the House of Representatives of the United States United States. MEDINFO 2007 K.A. Kuhn,J.R. Warren,T.-Y. Leong,2007-08-02 The theme of Medinfo2007 is Building Sustainable Health Systems Particular foci are health challenges for the developing and developed world the social and political context of healthcare safe and effective healthcare and the difficult task of building and maintaining complex health information systems Sustainable health information systems are those that can meet today s needs without compromising the needs of future generations To build a global knowledge society there needs to be an increased cooperation between science and technology and access to high quality knowledge and information The papers presented are refereed and from all over the world They reflect the breadth and depth of the field of biomedical and health informatics covering topics such as health information systems knowledge and data management education standards consumer health and human factors emerging technologies sustainability organizational and economic issues genomics and image and signal processing As this volume carries such a wide collection it will be of great interest to anyone engaged in biomedical and health informatics research and application The Nursing Informatics Implementation Guide Eleanor Callahan Hunt,Sara Breckenridge Sproat,Rebecca Rutherford Kitzmiller,2013-03-09 Health institutions are investing in and fielding information technology solutions at an unprecedented pace With the recommendations from the Institute of Medicine around information technology solutions for patient safety mandates from industry groups such as Leapfrog about using information systems to improve health care and the move toward evidence based practice health institutions cannot afford to retain manual practices The installation of multi million dollar computerized health systems represents the very life blood of contemporary clinical operations and a crucial link to the financial viability of institutions Yet the implementation of health information systems is exceptionally complex expensive and often just plain messy The need for improvement in the art and science of systems implementation is clear up to 70 80% of information technology installations fail The reasons are multi faceted ranging from the complexity of the diverse workflows being computerized the intricate nature of health organizations the knowledge and skills of users to other reasons such as strategies for obtaining key executive support weaving through the politics peculiar to the institution and technical facets including the usability of systems Thus the art and science of successfully implementing systems remains deeply layered in elusiveness Still given the pervasiveness of system implementations and the importance of the outcomes this is a critical topic especially for nurses and informatics nurse specialists Senate Document ,2003
