

API Standard 653

Tank Inspection, Repair, Alteration, and Reconstruction

FIFTH EDITION | NOVEMBER 2014 | 156 PAGES | 800-368 | PRODUCT NO. 65305

This standard covers steel storage tanks built to API 650 and its predecessor API 620. It provides minimum requirements for maintaining the integrity of such tanks after they have been placed in service and addresses inspection, repair, alteration, renovation, and reconstruction.

The scope is limited to the bare, noninsulated, bottom, steel structures, not attached appendages, and located in the liquid level range that include part or full submerged bottoms. Many of the design, loading, construction, and material requirements of API 650 will be applied in the maintenance, inspection, testing, repair, and alteration of existing tanks. In the case of complete rebuilds between the requirements of this standard and API 650 or its predecessor API 620, the standard shall govern for tanks that have been placed in service.

This standard outlines the principles of API 650, whether storage tank, work-in-progress, based on consideration of design, construction and operating limits, then applying the standard to any steel tank (existing) to be constructed with a tank specification.

This standard is intended for use by organizations that maintain or have access to engineering and construction, operating facilities, tanks and equipment or tank design, fabrication, repair, construction and inspection.

This standard does not contain rules or guidelines to cover all the various conditions which may occur in existing tanks during design, construction, testing and delivery, and are not suitable for the actual inspection, testing and repair as they all require input to the standard for the current edition of API 650 rules for use.

This standard requires comprehensive assessment methods for assessing current condition of existing storage tanks. API 650, 653 and API 652, respectively, provide detailed assessment procedures in accordance with the specific type of degradation observed in the storage tank. The standard does not provide specific assessment procedures of nonconformities for a specific type of degradation or when the required results show the need of these features. API 650, 653 and 652, respectively, may be used to assess the various types of degradation or test requirements addressed in this standard.
