Abstract

The representation of Javanese cultural ethic in the comic Panji Koming can be identified from a few scenes, for example, physical action, speech and moral values through education and learning process since childhood in Javanese culture. The comic performs the Javanese principles and ethics in each edition. Javanese society upholds the manners. Accordingly, respect is the key for harmonious living in the society as a whole. The respect is shown in various ways: gesture, hand movements, voice, greeting, and the level of the language used. However, the discourse on Javanese female stereotype is clearly viewed, because of the simple representation that reduces women to a series of exaggerated characteristics and usually imply a negative connotation. The stereotype has reduced, naturalized, created a basis, and set a difference. While in the perspective of Islamic education the educational values are taught so that their children have good manners and language reflecting the values of Javanese custom which is still applied and maintained.
