Volume 38 Copenhagen Language In Studies:

Methodology, Technology and Innovation in Translation Process Research Inger M. Mees, Fabio Alves, Susanne Göpferich, 2009 This volume has been compiled in honour of Arnt Lykke Jakobsen on the occasion of his 65th birthday It contains papers by scholars from many parts of the world working in the fields of translation and interpreting This volume has been compiled in honour of Arnt Lykke Jakobsen on the occasion of his 65th birthday It contains papers by scholars from many parts of the world working in the fields of translation and interpreting with a particular emphasis on translation process studies The contributions are grouped into four main sections methodological issues computer assistance eye tracking and lastly the roles of precision strategies and quality assessment in translation International Handbook of Semiotics Peter Pericles Trifonas, 2015-05-11 This book provides an extensive overview and analysis of current work on semiotics that is being pursued globally in the areas of literature the visual arts cultural studies media the humanities natural sciences and social sciences Semiotics also known as structuralism is one of the major theoretical movements of the 20th century and its influence as a way to conduct analyses of cultural products and human practices has been immense This is a comprehensive volume that brings together many otherwise fragmented academic disciplines and currents uniting them in the framework of semiotics Addressing a longstanding need it provides a global perspective on recent and ongoing semiotic research across a broad range of disciplines The handbook is intended for all researchers interested in applying semiotics as a critical lens for inquiry across diverse disciplines Future Directions in Applied Linguistics Christina Gitsaki, 2011-12-08 The field of applied linguistics covers a diverse range of research and practice and has developed somewhat differently in various parts of the world due to variations in local socio cultural conditions needs and issues However this local diversity does not reflect a field that is incoherent but rather one which has a broad shared international agenda which is invigorated by the diversity brought to the field by local perspectives The papers in this volume represent some of the major global directions that research in applied linguistics is taking and shed light on how language is used to affect practice The aim of this volume is to explore some of the key methods and issues which are guiding applied linguistics into the future through an examination of these issues in local contexts thereby providing a basis for understanding the global directions the field is taking These directions follow two historically defined paths those related to educational studies and language teaching and those related to social issues involving language In the volume half the papers focus on the former examining issues of language teaching language teacher education and second language acquisition while the other half examine social issues related to language use bilingualism and multilingualism and language policy and planning The collection of papers presented in this book illustrates how these traditional themes are influenced by the rising forces of globalisation and the use of technology thus exemplifying both the new and old ways in which the study of language is realised Translation and

Creativity Kirsten Malmkjær, 2019-07-23 Kirsten Malmkjær argues that translating can and should be considered a valuable art form Examining notions of creativity and their relationship with translation and focusing on how the originality of translation is manifest in texts the author explores a range of texts and their translations in order to illustrate original as opposed to derivative translation With reference to thirty translators discourses on their source texts and the author's own experience of translating a short text Malmkjær explores the theory of creativity philosophical aesthetics the philosophy of language experimental and theoretical translation studies and translators discourses on their work Showing the relevance of these varied topics to the study of translating and translations underlines their complexity and the immensity of understanding that is regularly invested in translations This work proposes a complete rethinking of the concepts of creativity and originality as applied to translation and is vital reading for advanced students and researchers in translation studies and comparative literature International Books in Print, 1990 Methods and Strategies of Process

Research Cecilia Alvstad, Adelina Hild, Elisabet Tiselius, 2011-07-20 The volume includes contributions on the cognitive processes underlying translation and interpreting which represent innovative research with a methodological and empirical orientation The methodological section offers an assessment validation of different time lag measures discusses the challenges of interpreting keystroke and eye tracking data in translation and triangulating disfluency analysis and eye tracking data in sight translation research The remainder of the volume features empirical studies on such topics as metaphor comprehension audience perception in subtitling research translation and meta linguistic awareness effect of language pair specific factors on interpreting quality A special section is dedicated to expertise studies which look at the link between problem analysis and meta knowledge in experienced translators the effects of linguistic complexity on expert interpreting strategic processing and tacit knowledge in professional interpreting The volume celebrates the work of Birgitta Englund Dimitrova and her contribution to the development of process oriented research New Directions in Empirical Translation Process Research Michael Carl, Srinivas Bangalore, Moritz Schaeffer, 2015-07-31 This volume provides a comprehensive introduction to the Translation Process Research Database TPR DB which was compiled by the Centre for Research and Innovation in Translation and Technologies CRITT The TPR DB is a unique resource featuring more than 500 hours of recorded translation process data augmented with over 200 different rich annotations Twelve chapters describe the diverse research directions this data can support including the computational statistical and psycholinguistic modeling of human translation processes In the first chapters of this book the reader is introduced to the CRITT TPR DB This is followed by two main parts the first of which focuses on usability issues and details of implementing interactive machine translation It also discusses the use of external resources and translator information interaction The second part addresses the cognitive and statistical modeling of human translation processes including co activation at the lexical syntactic and discourse levels translation literality and various annotation schemata for the data New Approaches in Translation Process Research

Susanne Göpferich, Fabio Alves, Inger M. Mees, 2010-03-25 The Copenhagen Studies in Language Series includes studies of language for general purposes and also language for special purposes LSP It covers grammar semantics pragmatics text linguistics and translation both from theoretical and applied perspectives It is editorial policy to bring out the journal in the form of a series of thematic volumes Although produced from the Copenhagen Business School the journal welcomes contributions from linguists based at other institutions either in Denmark or the wider world This volume brings together five papers presented at the 1st International Research Workshop Methodology in Translation Process Research held from April 6 to 8 2009 at the University of Graz Austria The first three articles provide insights into the methods employed in the TransComp project at the University of Graz and discuss some of the findings this longitudinal study has yielded so far The fourth presents results from another longitudinal study the CTP project Capturing Translation Processes conducted at Zurich University of Applied Sciences The collection concludes with a contribution which bridges methodology in translation and interpreting process research Empirical Translation Studies Gyde Hansen, 2002 Copenhagen Studies in Language carries studies in both language for general purposes and language for special purposes LSP Its scope covers grammar semantics pragmatics text linguistics and translation from a theoretical as well as an applied perspective It is the editors policy to bring out thematic volumes The present volume on empirical translation studies is the latest in a series of volumes following this policy While based at the Copenhagen Business School the series is open to contributions from linguists in other institutions in Denmark and abroad Triangulating Translation Fabio Alves, 2003-11-24 This book contains a selection of papers presented in a subsection on translation process analysis at the II Brazilian International Translators Forum held on 23 27 July 2001 The volume builds on the notion of triangulation i e the combined use of different methods of data elicitation and analyses to discuss methodological issues and actual experimental methods in the field of translation process research Grouped in three parts the seven contributions raise issues concerned among others with the translation pragmatics interface the role of inter subjectivity the attempts at modeling what accounts for translation competence and the effect of think aloud on translation speed revision and segmentation The volume also examines the process of translation in terms of relevant measurements which can validate some of the instruments used in the triangulation approach and fosters the application of triangulation as a pedagogical instrument to be applied to translators training The book will certainly find an audience among translation scholars doing experimental work and students and practitioners interested in capturing the translation process Empirical Translation Studies Gert De Sutter, Marie-Aude Lefer, Isabelle Delaere, 2017-05-08 The present volume is devoted to the study of language use in translated texts as a function of various linguistic contextual and cognitive factors It contributes to the recent trend in empirical translation studies towards more methodological sophistication including mixed methodology designs and multivariate statistical analyses ultimately leading to a more accurate understanding of language use in translations Research Methodologies in Translation Studies Gabriela

Saldanha, Sharon O'Brien, 2014-04-08 As an interdisciplinary area of research translation studies attracts students and scholars with a wide range of backgrounds who then need to face the challenge of accounting for a complex object of enquiry that does not adapt itself well to traditional methods in other fields of investigation This book addresses the needs of such scholars whether they are students doing research at postgraduate level or more experienced researchers who want to familiarize themselves with methods outside their current field of expertise The book promotes a discerning and critical approach to scholarly investigation by providing the reader not only with the know how but also with insights into how new questions can be fruitfully explored through the coherent integration of different methods of research Understanding core principles of reliability validity and ethics is essential for any researcher no matter what methodology they adopt and a whole chapter is therefore devoted to these issues Research Methodologies in Translation Studies is divided into four different chapters according to whether the research focuses on the translation product the process of translation the participants involved or the context in which translation takes place An introductory chapter discusses issues of reliability credibility validity and ethics The impact of our research depends not only on its quality but also on successful dissemination and the final chapter therefore deals with what is also generally the final stage of the research process producing a research report

Explorations in Empirical Translation Process Research Michael Carl, 2022-07-29 This book assembles fifteen original interdisciplinary research chapters that explore methodological and conceptual considerations as well as user and usage studies to elucidate the relation between the translation product and translation post editing processes It introduces numerous innovative empirical data driven measures as well as novel classification schemes and taxonomies to investigate and quantify the relation between translation quality and translation effort in from scratch translation machine translation post editing and computer assisted audiovisual translation The volume addresses questions in the translation of cognates neologisms metaphors and idioms as well as figurative and cultural specific expressions It re assesses the notion of translation universals and translation literality elaborates on the definition of translation units and syntactic equivalence and investigates the impact of translation ambiguity and translation entropy The results and findings are interpreted in the context of psycho linguistic models of bilingualism and re frame empirical translation process research within the context of modern dynamic cognitive theories of the mind The volume bridges the gap between translation process research and machine translation research It appeals to students and researchers in the fields The Routledge Handbook of Translation and Methodology Federico Zanettin, Christopher Rundle, 2022-03-10 The Routledge Handbook of Translation and Methodology provides a comprehensive overview of methodologies in translation studies including both well established and more recent approaches The Handbook is organised into three sections the first of which covers methodological issues in the two main paradigms to have emerged from within translation studies namely skopos theory and descriptive translation studies The second section covers multidisciplinary perspectives in research methodology and considers their application in translation research The third section deals with practical and pragmatic methodological issues Each chapter provides a summary of relevant research a literature overview critical issues and topics recommendations for best practice and some suggestions for further reading Bringing together over 30 eminent international scholars from a wide range of disciplinary and geographical backgrounds this Handbook is essential reading for all students and scholars involved in translation methodology and research

Empirical modelling of translation and interpreting Hansen-Schirra, Silvia,Czulo, Oliver,Hofmann, Sascha,2017 Empirical research is carried out in a cyclic way approaching a research area bottom up data lead to interpretations and ideally to the abstraction of laws on the basis of which a theory can be derived Deductive research is based on a theory on the basis of which hypotheses can be formulated and tested against the background of empirical data Looking at the state of the art in translation studies either theories as well as models are designed or empirical data are collected and interpreted However the final step is still lacking so far empirical data has not lead to the formulation of theories or models whereas existing theories and models have not yet been comprehensively tested with empirical methods This publication addresses these issues from several perspectives multi method product as well as process based research may gain insights into translation as well as interpreting phenomena These phenomena may include cognitive and organizational processes procedures and strategies competence and performance translation properties and universals etc Empirical findings about the deeper structures of translation and interpreting will reduce the gap between translation and interpreting practice and model and theory building Furthermore the availability of more large scale empirical testing triggers the development of models and theories concerning translation and interpreting phenomena and behavior based on quantifiable replicable and transparent data

Advances in Empirical Translation Studies Meng Ji,Michael Oakes,2022-03-10 Empirical translation studies is a rapidly evolving research area This volume written by world leading researchers demonstrates the integration of two new research paradigms socially oriented and data driven approaches to empirical translation studies These two models expand current translation studies and stimulate reader debates around how development of quantitative research methods and integration with advances in translation technologies would significantly increase the research capacities of translation studies Highly engaging the volume pioneers the development of socially oriented innovative research methods to enhance the current research capacities of theoretical descriptive translation studies in order to tackle real life research issues such as environmental protection and multicultural health promotion Illustrative case studies are used bringing insight into advanced research methodologies of designing developing and analysing large scale digital databases for multilingual and or translation research

Corpus-Assisted Translation Teaching Kanglong Liu,2021-11-03 This book sheds new light on corpus assisted translation pedagogy an intersection of three distinct but cognate disciplines corpus linguistics translation and pedagogy By taking an innovative and empirical approach to translation teaching the study utilizes mixed methods including translation experiments surveys and in depth focus groups The results demonstrated the unique advantages and at the same time called attention to possible pitfalls of using corpora for translation teaching purposes This book enriches our understanding of corpus application in the setting of translation between Chinese and English two languages which are each distinctly different from one another Readers will also discover new horizons in this burgeoning and interdisciplinary field of research This book appeals to a broad readership from scholars and researchers who are interested in translation technology to widen the scope of translation studies translation trainers in search of effective teaching approaches to a growing number of cross disciplinary postgraduate students longing to improve their translation skills and competence Digital Research Methods for Translation Studies Julie McDonough Dolmaya, 2023-12-22 Digital Research Methods for Translation Studies introduces digital humanities methods and tools to translation studies This accessible book covers computer assisted approaches to data collection data analysis and data visualization and presentation offering authentic examples of these approaches in both translation studies research and projects from related fields With a diverse range of examples featuring various contexts and language combinations to ensure relevance to a wide readership this volume covers the strengths and limitations of computer assisted research methods as well as the ethical challenges specific to this kind of research This is an essential text for advanced undergraduate and graduate translation studies students as well as researchers looking to adopt new research methods

Explorations in Empirical Translation Process Research Michael Carl, 2021 This book assembles fifteen original interdisciplinary research chapters that explore methodological and conceptual considerations as well as user and usage studies to elucidate the relation between the translation product and translation post editing processes It introduces numerous innovative empirical data driven measures as well as novel classification schemes and taxonomies to investigate and quantify the relation between translation quality and translation effort in from scratch translation machine translation post editing and computer assisted audiovisual translation The volume addresses questions in the translation of cognates neologisms metaphors and idioms as well as figurative and cultural specific expressions It re assesses the notion of translation universals and translation literality elaborates on the definition of translation units and syntactic equivalence and investigates the impact of translation ambiguity and translation entropy The results and findings are interpreted in the context of psycho linguistic models of bilingualism and re frame empirical translation process research within the context of modern dynamic cognitive theories of the mind The volume bridges the gap between translation process research and machine translation research It appeals to students and researchers in the fields Empirical Translation Studies Meng Ji, 2016 The corpus study of lexicography and phraseology represents mainstream research in applied translation studies and multilingual studies It has provided a focus of significant research in the field which explores the validity and productivity of corpus methods and approaches to the study of lexical events in translations This volume provides an updated introduction to the interdisciplinary corpus study of lexicography in translation whereas many past publications focus on a specific approach for example cognitive stylistic or computational to the study of translation and or multilingual lexis An important component of this book is the historical sociolinguistic approach to the study of translation lexis This represents an emerging research pathway in the field which has been rarely explored in translation studies at least in a systematic corpus based manner The interdisciplinary research approaches presented in this book regarding the extraction modeling analysis and explanation of the use of lexis and phrase in translation and multilingual texts offer a practical study guide to postgraduate and research students of applied translation studies
