Understanding Development Economics Adam Fforde, 2014-01-03 Important parts of development practice especially in key institutions such as the World Bank are dominated by economists In contrast Development Studies is largely based upon multidisciplinary work in which anthropologists human geographers sociologists and others play important roles Hence a tension has arisen between the claims made by Development Economics to be a scientific measurable discipline prone to wide usage of mathematical modelling and the more discursive practice based approach favoured by Development Studies The aim of this book is to show how the two disciplines have interacted as well as how they differ This is crucial in forming an understanding of development work and to thinking about why policy recommendations can often lead to severe and continuing problems in developing countries This book introduces Development Economics to those coming from two different but linked perspectives economists and students of development who are not economists In both explaining and critiquing Development Economics the book is able to suggest the implications of these findings for Development Studies and more broadly for development policy and its outcomes Economic Perspectives Maurice B. Ballabon,1979 Rural

The World Bank's Country Policy and Institutional Assessment The World Bank, 2010-09-13 The evaluation finds that the content of the World Bank's Country Policy and Institutional Assessment CPIA is largely relevant for growth and poverty reduction in the sense that it maps well with the determinants of growth and poverty reduction identified in the economics literature However some CPIA criteria need to be revised in particular trade and finance and one needs to be added assessment of disadvantaged socio economic groups Second the evaluation finds that the CPIA ratings are in general reliable and correlate well with similar indicators The World Bank's internal review process helps guard against potential biases in having Bank staff rate countries on which their work programs depend The CPIA ratings are found to correlate better with similar indicators for middle income countries than for low income countries This could be because there is more information available on middle income countries which increases the likelihood of different institutions having similar assessments on them This could also be because the CPIA rating exercise takes into account the stage of development which is more pertinent for low income countries and which also subject the ratings of those countries to more judgment in an exercise that is already centered on staff judgment
