- For children between the ages of 18 months and 29 months, there is approximately a linear relationship between height and age. The relationship can be represented by $\hat{y} = 64.93 + 0.63x$, where y represents height (in centimeters) and x represents age (in months). Joseph is 22.5 months old and is 80 centimeters tall. What is Joseph's residual?
 (a) 79.1 (b) -0.9 (c) 0.9 (d) 56.6 (e) 64.93
 - A study examined the relationship between the sepal length and sepal width for two varieties of an exotic tropical plant. Varieties A and B are represented by x's and o's, respectively, in the following scatterplot. Which of the following statements is FALSE?
 (a) Considering Variety A only, there is a negative correlation between sepal length and width.
 (b) Considering Variety B only, the least-squares regression line for predicting sepal length from sepal width has a negative slope.
 (c) Considering both varieties, there is a positive correlation between sepal length and width.
 (d) Considering each variety separately, there is a positive correlation between sepal length and width.
 (e) Considering both varieties, the least-squares regression line for predicting sepal length from sepal width has a positive slope.
- The scatterplot displays two distinct groups of data points. Variety A, marked with 'x's', is clustered in the lower-left region of the plot, showing a clear downward trend where sepal length decreases as sepal width increases. Variety B, marked with 'o's', is clustered in the upper-right region, showing an upward trend where sepal length increases as sepal width increases. The axes are labeled 'width' on the x-axis and 'length' on the y-axis, with numerical scales provided for both.
- On May 11, 50 randomly selected subjects had their systolic blood pressure (SBP) recorded twice—the first time at about 9:00 a.m. and the second time at about 2:00 p.m. If one were to examine the relationship between the morning and afternoon readings, then one might expect the correlation to be
 (a) near zero, as morning and afternoon readings should be independent.
 (b) high and positive, as those with relatively high readings in the morning will tend to have relatively high readings in the afternoon.
 (c) high and negative, as those with relatively high readings in the morning will tend to have relatively low readings in the afternoon.
 (d) near zero, as correlation measures the strength of the linear association.
 (e) near zero, as blood pressure readings should follow approximately a Normal distribution.
 - Suppose we fit a least-squares regression line to a set of data. What is true if a plot of the residuals shows a curved pattern?
 (a) A straight line is not a good model for the data.
 (b) The correlation must be 0.
 (c) The correlation must be positive.
 (d) Outliers must be present.
 (e) The regression line might or might not be a good model for the data, depending on the extent of the curve.
