

APA Format–6th Edition

OVERVIEW–The American Psychological Association (APA) style is widely accepted in the social sciences and other fields, such as education, business, and nursing. The APA citation format requires parenthetical citations within the text rather than endnotes or footnotes. Citations in the text provide brief information, usually the name of the author and the date of publication, to lead the reader to the source of information in the reference list at the end of the paper.

NOTE: Although the examples in this guide are shown in single space, APA style requires double spacing throughout (e.g. text, references, etc.)

APA RULES FOR THE REFERENCES PAGE – The following sections show some of the more commonly used APA citation rules.

NOTE: All citations must be in the Hanging Indent Format with the first line flush to the left margin and all other lines indented.

National Identity and Ingroup-Outgroup Attitudes in Children: The Role of Socio-Historical Settings Louis Oppenheimer, Martyn Barrett, 2014-02-04 This special issue reports the findings from eight studies which examined children's national identifications and national attitudes Data were collected from 725 7 and 11 year old children living in countries that have or have not experienced violence or war in the recent past Twelve national groups participated in the studies including Jewish and Arab children Israel Bosniak and Serbian children Bosnia Catholic and Protestant children Northern Ireland Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot children Cyprus Basque and Spanish children the Basque Country and Dutch and English children The Netherlands and England The studies examined whether differences in the structure and content of national identity and attitudes result not only from processes of knowledge acquisition but also from cohort and context effects Developmental and gender differences within each national group and differences between national groups are explored in terms of the cultural heritage of the particular group to which the children belong and the patterns of historical and contemporary relationships that exist between their own group and the various outgroups towards which their attitudes were assessed Findings show that the development of national identifications and national attitudes exhibit considerable cross national variation as a function of the specific socio historical contexts within which children develop These studies considered together indicate the need for developmental theorising in this area to avoid simplistic conclusions based upon data collected within just one specific location The adoption of a broader cross national comparative perspective is required when attempting to address questions concerning how children's national identifications and attitudes develop within real world settings
