Yacobucci,2010 This report discusses the growing interest in the potential for ethanol to displace petroleum as a transportation fuel as well as related issues including current Clean Air Act CAA limitation on ethanol content in gasoline the requests of ethanol producers for an increase of this limitation and the effects the limitation has upon vehicle and engine warranties and the infrastructures of the automobile and fuel industries Renewable Fuel Standard National Research Council,Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences,Board on Energy and Environmental Systems,Division on Earth and Life Studies,Board on Agriculture and Natural Resources,Committee on Economic and Environmental Impacts of Increasing Biofuels Production,2012-01-29 In the United States we have come to depend on plentiful and inexpensive energy to support our economy and lifestyles In recent years many questions have been raised regarding the sustainability of our current pattern of high consumption of nonrenewable energy and its environmental consequences Further because the United States imports about 55 percent of the nation s consumption of crude oil there are additional concerns about the security of supply Hence efforts are being made to find alternatives to our current pathway including greater energy efficiency and use of energy sources that could lower greenhouse gas GHG emissions such as nuclear and renewable sources including solar wind geothermal and biofuels The United States has a long history with biofuels and the nation is on a course charted to achieve a substantial increase in biofuels Renewable Fuel Standard evaluates the economic and environmental consequences of increasing biofuels production as a result of Renewable Fuels Standard as amended by EISA RFS2 The report describes biofuels produced in 2010 and those projected to be produced and consumed by 2022 reviews model projections and other estimates of the relative impact on the prices of land and discusses the potential environmental harm and benefits of biofuels production and the barriers to achieving the RFS2 consumption mandate Policy makers investors leaders in the transportation sector and others with concerns for the environment economy and energy security can rely on the recommendations provided in this report
