Y. Lo,2025-07-15 Among the most important questions that businesses ask are some very simple ones If I decide to do something will it work And if so how large are the effects To answer these predictive questions and later base decisions on them we need to establish causal relationships Establishing and measuring causality can be difficult This book explains the most useful techniques for discerning causality and illustrates the principles with numerous examples from business It discusses randomized experiments aka A B testing and techniques such as propensity score matching synthetic controls double differences and instrumental variables There is a chapter on the powerful AI approach of Directed Acyclic Graphs aka Bayesian Networks another on structural equation models and one on time series techniques including Granger causality At the heart of the book are four chapters on uplift modeling where the goal is to help firms determine how best to deploy their resources for marketing or other interventions We start by modeling uplift discuss the test and learn process and provide an overview of the prescriptive analytics of uplift The book is written in an accessible style and will be of interest to data analysts and strategists in business to students and instructors of business and analytics who have a solid foundation in statistics and to data scientists who recognize the need to take seriously the need for causality as an essential input into effective decision making

Data Mining and Exploration Chong Ho Alex Yu, 2022-10-27 This book introduces both conceptual and procedural aspects of cutting edge data science methods such as dynamic data visualization artificial neural networks ensemble methods and text mining There are at least two unique elements that can set the book apart from its rivals First most students in social sciences engineering and business took at least one class in introductory statistics before learning data science However usually these courses do not discuss the similarities and differences between traditional statistics and modern data science as a result learners are disoriented by this seemingly drastic paradigm shift In reaction some traditionalists reject data science altogether while some beginning data analysts employ data mining tools as a black box without a comprehensive view of the foundational differences between traditional and modern methods e g dichotomous thinking vs pattern recognition confirmation vs exploration single method vs triangulation single sample vs cross validation etc This book delineates the transition between classical methods and data science e g from p value to Log Worth from resampling to ensemble methods from content analysis to text mining etc Second this book aims to widen the learner's horizon by covering a plethora of software tools When a technician has a hammer every problem seems to be a nail By the same token many textbooks focus on a single software package only and consequently the learner tends to fit the problem with the tool but not the other way around To rectify the situation a competent analyst should be equipped with a tool set rather than a single tool For example when the analyst works with crucial data in a highly regulated industry such as pharmaceutical and banking commercial software modules e g SAS are indispensable For a mid size and small company open source packages such as Python would come in handy If the research goal is to create an executive summary quickly the logical choice is rapid model comparison If the analyst would like to explore the data by asking what if questions then dynamic graphing in JMP Pro is a better option This book uses concrete examples to explain the pros and cons of various software applications

Ethical Data Mining Applications for Socio-Economic Development Rahman, Hakikur, Ramos, Isabel, 2013-05-31 This book provides an overview of data mining techniques under an ethical lens investigating developments in research best practices and examining experimental cases to identify potential ethical dilemmas in the information and communications technology sector Provided by publisher
