

Perfect Competition in the Short Run and the Long Run

Introduction and Motivation

It is always interesting to try the challenge under what the profit-maximizing output of the perfectly competitive firm has been interpreted as the production of the industry when marginal revenue equals marginal cost. The perfectly competitive firm marginal revenue is constant because it is equal to the selling price. The short-run cost curve is not linear, producing a horizontal short-run marginal revenue curve. The short-run marginal revenue curve is constant because the short-run marginal revenue is constant. The short-run marginal revenue curve is constant because the short-run marginal revenue is constant. The short-run marginal revenue curve is constant because the short-run marginal revenue is constant.

In the short run, a firm has fixed costs. The firm's marginal revenue is constant, and the short-run marginal revenue is constant. The short-run marginal revenue is constant because the short-run marginal revenue is constant. The short-run marginal revenue is constant because the short-run marginal revenue is constant.

The long-run situation is more complex. The firm's marginal revenue is constant, and the short-run marginal revenue is constant. The short-run marginal revenue is constant because the short-run marginal revenue is constant. The short-run marginal revenue is constant because the short-run marginal revenue is constant.

Under the long-run situation, the firm's marginal revenue is constant, and the short-run marginal revenue is constant. The short-run marginal revenue is constant because the short-run marginal revenue is constant. The short-run marginal revenue is constant because the short-run marginal revenue is constant.

The long-run situation is more complex. The firm's marginal revenue is constant, and the short-run marginal revenue is constant. The short-run marginal revenue is constant because the short-run marginal revenue is constant. The short-run marginal revenue is constant because the short-run marginal revenue is constant.

Under the long-run situation, the firm's marginal revenue is constant, and the short-run marginal revenue is constant. The short-run marginal revenue is constant because the short-run marginal revenue is constant. The short-run marginal revenue is constant because the short-run marginal revenue is constant.

Under the long-run situation, the firm's marginal revenue is constant, and the short-run marginal revenue is constant. The short-run marginal revenue is constant because the short-run marginal revenue is constant. The short-run marginal revenue is constant because the short-run marginal revenue is constant.
