

DEVELOPMENT OF ADULT EDUCATION IN INDIA 1951-2001

Dr. B.S. Vasudeva Rao

The need for adult education evolved and unfolded itself with the realization of the fact that it is the key to the future progress of mankind (Roy 1967). While this is common, which the world as such a country like India, with all its manifestations of socio-economic and technical backwardness has no other way but to take a serious view of the need of adult education and to implement it as a priority programme. It is the realization, Government of India besides strengthening formal education system that led to the launching of number of schemes to eradicate illiteracy in India.

Post-Independence Development:

Formal efforts started emerging in the field of adult education with the promotion of popular ministries in the provinces. The popular governments accorded public recognition to adult education and identified it as a definite responsibility of government. (Bordia,1973). Subsequently the Central Advisory Board of Education appointed an adult education committee strongly recommended for serious effort in adult education and declared "No government can make any appreciable headway with its schemes for promotion of socio-economic welfare of its people unless the people are prepared to meet the government halfway and offer it responsive cooperation. This responsive cooperation is only possible when people possess some amount of education". (Nurullah and Naik, 1951).

After the emergence of India as an Independent country, the concept of adult education underwent significant changes. It was not only due to variety of socio-economic and political development within India but also the overseas influence which played no less significant part. Under various bilateral and multi lateral agreements, India received both technical and financial support from a number of countries. It was changing policies of the government of India that served to have influenced the transformation of the concept of adult education from basic literacy into Civil Literacy by 1950's and further to functional literacy by 1960's with the introduction of the National Adult Education programmes in 1978, the focus of adult education shifted to conscientization and development. The launching of the National Literacy Mission in 1988, and the subsequently emergence of Total Literacy campaigns in different parts of India led to the
