Aquaculture in the Coastal Zone João Coimbra,2001 The successful development of coastal aquaculture in the opening years of the new millennium will depend upon solution of a multiplicity of economic sociological engineering scientific and environmental issues The objective of this volume is to update the current status of research in aquaculture in the coastal zone and outline directions for the development of sustainable aquaculture using modern methodologies It also discusses the application of existing knowledge and the creation of new knowledge to ensure that aquaculture will develop at a sufficient pace to sustain and enhance the availability of high quality foods of aquatic origin in the human diet despite the global decline in the capture fishery

Environmental Human Rights Jan Hancock,2019-07-12 This title was first published in 2003 Environmental Human Rights redefines the political ethical and legal relationships between the environment and human rights to claim the human rights to an environment free from toxic pollution and to natural resources Through a focus on the operational dynamics of social power this compelling book details how global capitalism subjugates concerns of human security and environmental protection to the values of allocative efficiency and economic growth The capacity of social power to construct ethical norms and to determine the efficacy of law is examined to explain how ethical and legal concepts have been selectively applied to accommodate existing patterns of production consumption and exchange that cause environmental degradation and human rights violations By looking at how environmental values have been systematically excluded from the human rights discourse the book claims that human rights politics and law has been constructed on double standards to accommodate the destructive forces of capitalism

Pragmatic Legal and Policy Implications of Environmental Lawmaking Movahedian, Hussein, Norouzi, Nima, 2023-05-01 The publication of environmental degradation statistics worldwide and the announcement of scientific assessments of the process of its destruction have attracted everyone's attention to the environment. On the world stage, international environmental laws and regulations must be formulated to protect the environment and humanity from further harm. This book provides selective coverage of environmental and energy law within the European Union (EU) and the United Kingdom as well as internationally. It is crucial to examine environmental and energy law from a wide range of perspectives and approaches to gain insight into how the law is designed to tackle particular environmental problems arising in both professional and theoretical settings. Pragmatic Legal and Policy Implications of Environmental Lawmaking bridges the knowledge gap between legal developments designed to achieve environmental and/or energy objectives, for example, pollution control and conservation, on the one hand, and the practical scientific and technical considerations applicable to the same environmental problems on the other. By adopting a multi-disciplinary approach to environmental and energy law, the book embraces all readerships and goes a step further to address the often difficult problem of improving communication between scientists and engineers and law and policymakers. Covering topics such as environmental degradation, energy law, and international trade legislation, the book will be useful to law students and professionals working in the fields of environmental and/or energy law, engineering, and geo-science students and professionals as well as others working in various other disciplines. The Institutional Economics of Water R.

Maria Saleth, Ariel Dinar, 2004-01-01 This publication examines issues of water sector reform and performance from the perspectives of institutional economics and political economic studies. The authors develop an alternative quantitative assessment methodology based on the principle of institutional ecology as well as data collected from 127 water experts from 43 countries and regions around the world using a cross-country review of recent water sector reforms within an institutional transaction cost framework. Environmental Discourses in Public and International Law Brad Jessup, Kim

Rubenstein, 2012-02-02 How do dominant views and arguments about environmental problems traverse and connect international and public law? Governance of Marine Fisheries and Biodiversity Conservation Serge M. Garcia, Jake Rice, Anthony Charles, 2014-07-15 Governance of Marine Fisheries and Biodiversity Conservation explores governance of the world's oceans with a focus on the impacts of two interconnected but historically separate streams of governance: one for fisheries, the other for biodiversity conservation. Chapters most co-authored by leading experts from both streams investigate the interaction of these governance streams from ecological, economic, social, and legal perspectives, with emphasis on policies, institutions, processes, and outcomes on scales from the global to the local community, and with coverage of a range of themes and regions of the world. The book opens with chapters setting the historical context for the two marine governance streams and framing the book's exploration of whether, as the streams increasingly interact, there will be merger or collision, convergence or co-evolution. The concluding chapter synthesizes the insights from throughout the book relative to the questions posed in the opening chapters It also draws conclusions about future needs and directions in the governance of marine fisheries and biodiversity vital to the future of the world's oceans With cutting edge chapters written by many leading international experts in fisheries management and biodiversity conservation and edited by three leading figures in this crucially important subject Governance of Marine Fisheries and Biodiversity Conservation is an essential purchase for fisheries scientists economists resource managers and policymakers and all those working in fields of biodiversity conservation marine ecology and coastal livelihoods Libraries in all universities and research establishments where environmental and or marine studies conservation ocean policy and law biological and life sciences and fisheries management are studied and taught should have copies of this most important book Biodiversity Conservation and Poverty Alleviation Dilys Roe, Joanna Elliott, Chris Sandbrook, Matt Walpole, 2012-11-16 Biodiversity conservation and poverty alleviation are both important societal goals demanding increasing international attention While they may seem to be unrelated the international policy frameworks that guide action to address them make an explicit assumption that conserving biodiversity will help to tackle global poverty Part of the Conservation Science and Practice Series published with the Zoological Society of London this book explores the validity of that assumption The book addresses a number of critical questions Which aspects of biodiversity are of value to the poor Does the relationship between biodiversity and poverty differ according to particular ecological conditions How do different conservation interventions vary in their poverty impacts How do distributional and institutional issues affect the poverty impacts of interventions How do broader issues such as climate change and the global economic system affect the biodiversity poverty relationship at different scales This volume will be of interest to policy makers practitioners and researchers concerned with understanding the potential and limitations of integrated approaches to biodiversity conservation and poverty alleviation Trends in forest conditions and implications for resilience to climate change under differing forest governance regimes Russell, A., Waiswa, D., Owuor, B., Ongugo, P., Bomuhangi, A., Banana, A.Y., Kimondo, J.M., 2017-03-16 Mount Elgon is a transboundary East African montane ecosystem that harbors unique biological diversity and provides critical goods and services to the surrounding densely populated communities As a key water tower the effectiveness of forest and land management policies has direct impacts on agriculture hydropower fisheries and other sectors across large watersheds in Uganda and Kenya and onward to the whole Nile River basin The Uganda Wildlife Authority UWA the Kenya Wildlife Service KWS and the Kenya Forest Service KFS have developed a range of exclusionary protected area and partial access participatory forest management approaches to enforce national conservation mandates in different portions of the Mount Elgon The future resilience of forest assemblages will be challenged as climate change and increased variability in weather patterns interact that with societal interventions that may enable the introduction of exotic species the expansion of diseases The objective of this study was to assess the impact of different forest governance regimes on forest structure and composition over time 1997 2014 Two study sites in Uganda

Kapkwei and Bufuma and Kenya Chorlem and Kimothon under differing forest governance arrangements were monitored from 1997 to 2014 using the International Forestry Resources and Institutions IFRI methodology Each forest unit was sampled three to four times 1997 2001 2008 2013 2014 at 30 randomly established sample plots Data was collected on seedlings counts saplings and shrubs diameter at breast height DBH and height trees DBH and height and forest use This analysis of forest structure and composition included density basal area dominant species species richness and the Shannon Wiener species diversity index When comparing the outcomes for participatory forest management and centralized forest management in Uganda versus Kenya the results defy dogmatic generalizations as the outcomes differed in the two countries Furthermore this study highlighted the fragility of certain improvements in forest resilience In this respect recent declines in forest cover mean that these forest management regimes will need to continue improving their engagement with local communities in order to address both internal socioeconomic and urban private sector driven deterioration of Mount Elgon s forests This study also highlights the need for greater integration of development climate change adaptation and conservation climate change mitigation policies

Adaptive Capacity and Environmental Governance Derek Armitage, Ryan Plummer, 2014-07-08 Rapid environmental change calls for individuals and societies with an ability to transform our interactions with each other and the ecosystems upon which we depend Adaptive capacity the ability of a social ecological system or the components of that system to be robust to disturbances and capable of responding to changes is increasingly recognized as a critical attribute of multi level environmental governance This unique volume offers the first interdisciplinary and integrative perspective on an emerging area of applied scholarship with contributions from internationally recognized researchers and practitioners It demonstrates how adaptive capacity makes environmental governance possible in complex social ecological systems Cutting edge theoretical developments are explored and empirical case studies offered from a wide range of geographic settings and natural resource contexts such as water climate fisheries and forestry Of interest to researchers policymakers and resource managers seeking to navigate and understand social ecological change in diverse geographic settings and resource contexts

Sustaining Large Marine Ecosystems: The Human Dimension Timothy M. Hennessey, Jon G. Sutinen, 2005-05-06 The shift away from the management of individual resources to the broader perspective of ecosystems is no longer confined to academia and think tanks where it first began the ecosystem paradigm also is beginning to take root in government policy and programs This volume provides innovative and timely approaches for improving and sustaining socioeconomic benefits from LMEs The authors describe methodologies and actions for moving forward in halting the downward resource sustainability spiral and advancing toward the recovery of depleted fish stocks restoration of degraded habitats and reduction and control of pollution within the framework of an ecosystem based approach for the governance of LMEs First book to ever publish that focuses on the human dimension of large marine ecosystem management Offers set of guidelines for possible interrelationship management programs Addresses taxing issues and problems pertaining to the world's marine ecosystems Provides a matrix of the interdependence of economic social cultural and governance elements Navigating Social-Ecological Systems Fikret Berkes, Johan Colding, Carl Folke, 2008-04-24 In the effort towards sustainability it has become increasingly important to develop conceptual frames to understand the dynamics of social and ecological systems Drawing on complex systems theory this book investigates how human societies deal with change in linked social ecological systems and build capacity to adapt to change The concept of resilience is central in this context Resilient social ecological systems have the potential to sustain development by responding to and shaping change in a manner that does not lead to loss of future options Resilient systems also provide capacity for renewal and innovation in the face of rapid transformation and crisis The term navigating in the title is meant to capture this dynamic process Case studies and examples from several geographic areas cultures and resource types are included merging forefront research from natural sciences social sciences and the humanities into a common framework for new insights on sustainability Sustainability Networks Janne Hukkinen, 2008-08-18 Sustainability is a word that means different things depending on who is using it thus underlining the potential problems involved in experts from different fields teaming up to tackle sustainability problems In this book Janne Hukkinen argues for a reflexive approach to sustainability as a means of coming to grips with the threatening challenges arising out of human environment interaction The author illustrates his argument with a case study of natural resource management in Lapland showing how sustainability is understood holistically by academics and professionals alike This book reflects an emerging cognitive turn in sustainability sciences conceptualizing environmental challenges during action on our social and material environments rather than in isolation Hukkinen argues that this conceptual blending enables sustainability experts to hybridize themselves to immerse themselves in the fields of other experts and imagine the other's work both prerequisites of trans disciplinary knowledge integration This book shows how sustainability experts can reveal their intellectual engagements when designing scenarios and indicators and presents a rigorous framework for organizing expert collaboration
